Technology Transfer In International Business:

Managing International Technology Transfer Min Chen, 1996 As a result of the rapid globalization of business the subject of international technology transfer is now of importance to both scholars and practitioners of international business In drawing his examination from the fields of international studies international management and international law Min Chen provides a comprehensive consideration of the management and legal implications of international technology transfer The text is divided into four organically linked parts which discuss comparative national policies on technology transfer the international protection of intellectual property international licensing and lastly international technology transfer via other major commercial channels This work should be of interest to students and academics in business and technology also to international executives and lawyers

Technology Transfer in International Business Tamir Agmon, Mary Ann Young Von Glinow, 1991 This is a book on the means by which technological knowledge is transferred from countries that develop it to those that need it but have not yet been able to develop it on their own The focus is on the transfer of technology from Western countries to Asian countries

Technology Transfer in International Business Tamir Agmon, Mary Ann Von Glinow, 1991-08-01 This important collection examines the means by which technological knowledge is transferred from countries that develop it to those who need it Written by well known authorities and derived from a conference held at the University of California and sponsored by IBEAR International Business Education Research Program the contributions focus on the transfer of technology from Western countries to Asian countries

Multinationals, Governments, and International Technology Transfer A. E. Safarian, Gilles Y. Bertin, 2013 This book examines the international technology transfer process and the role of both multinationals and host country governments in that process with emphasis on the experience of the more developed countries It explores a range of issues and presents much original thinking and research findings It discusses in particular the strategies of the multinationals assessing how far they are willing to accept technology transfer to external partners as opposed to subsidiaries which they can control It also examines how far technical transfers are successful from the viewpoint of the firm

Organizing Global Technology Flows Pierre-Yves Donzé, Shigehiro Nishimura, 2013-11-12 Research on the international transfer of technology in economics and management literature has primarily focused on the role of countries and that of companies in particular multinational enterprises MNEs Similarly economic and business historians have tended to view international technology transfer as a way for economically backward countries to acquire new technologies in order to catch up with more developed economies This volume provides a more in depth understanding of how the international transfer of technologies is organized and in particular challenges the core periphery model that is still dominant in the extant literature By looking beyond national systems of innovation and statistics on foreign trade patent registration and foreign direct investment the book sheds more light on the variety of actors involved in the transfer process including engineers entrepreneurs governments public bodies firms etc and on how they make use of a broad set of national and international institutions facilitating technology transfer Put differently the volume offers a better understanding of the complexity of global technology flows by examining the role and actions of the different actors involved By bringing together a number of original case studies covering many different countries over the period from the late 19th to the 21st century the book demonstrates how technology is being transferred through complex processes involving a variety of actors from several countries using the national and international institutional frameworks

Multinationals, Governments and International Technology Transfer (RLE International Business) Edward Safarian, Gilles Bertin, 2013-05-07 This book examines the international technology transfer process and the role of both multinationals and host country governments in that process with emphasis on the experience of the more developed countries It explores a range of issues and presents much original thinking and research findings It discusses in particular the strategies of the multinationals assessing how far they are willing to accept technology transfer to external partners as opposed to subsidiaries which they can control It also examines how far technical transfers are successful from the viewpoint of the firm and countries involved arguing that governments are most likely to succeed in attracting multinational transfers if they are aware of and accommodate to some degree multinationals preferences

The Role of International Business in Clean Technology Transfer and Development Ans Kolk, 2013 While research has generated useful very insights usually at the macro level regarding the multi faceted nature of environmental innovation and regulation the characteristics and drivers peculiar to international companies have remained underexposed in the policy related literature on clean technology transfer and development This article aims to help open the black box of business also as input for future policy making by discussing aspects that influence corporate responses sector specific and company specific peculiarities as well as those related to country contexts both origin countries and host countries to companies Most of the climate related investments in developing countries turn out to have been geared to a few emerging economies generally involving established technologies with limited transfer and a major role for developed country utilities particularly from Europe Despite these limitations there is a base with experience being built up and a potential for extension to lesser developed areas but that requires market co creation by joint business and governmental efforts As viable business models are largely lacking the article suggests three main modalities ranging from fully commercial to primarily publicly funded involving different types of actors and countries Gearing policies more toward corporate realities and reaping the international momentum of sustainable energy might also further climate goals
