Sitting prominently at the hearth of our homes television serves as a voice of our modern time Given our media saturated society and television's prominent voice and place in the home it is likely we learn about our society and selves through these stories These narratives are not simply entertainment but powerful socializing agents that shape and reflect the world and our role in it Television and the Self Knowledge Identity and Media Representation brings together a diverse group of scholars to investigate the role television plays in shaping our understanding of self and family This edited collection's rich and diverse research demonstrates how television plays an important role in negotiating self and goes far beyond the treacly very special episodes found in family sitcoms in the 1980s Instead the authors show how television reflects our reality and helps us to sort out what it means to be a twenty first century man or woman A Companion to Reality Television Laurie

Lewis, 2013-09-13 The past decade has seen an explosion of lifestyle makeover TV shows Audiences around the world are being urged to renovate everything from their homes to their pets and children while lifestyle experts on TV now tell us what not to eat and what not to wear Makeover television and makeover culture is now ubiquitous and yet compared with reality TV shows like Big Brother and Survivor there has been relatively little critical attention paid to this format This exciting collection of essays written by leading media scholars from the UK US and Australia aims to reveal the reasons for the huge popularity and influence of the makeover show. Written in a lively and accessible manner the essays brought together here will help readers make sense of makeover TV by offering a range of different approaches to understanding the emergence of this popular cultural phenomenon. Looking at a range of shows from The Biggest Loser to Trinny and Susannah Undress essays include an analysis of how and why makeover TV shows have migrated across such a range of TV cultures, the social significance of the rise of home renovation shows, the different ways in which British versus American audiences identify with makeover shows and the growing role of lifestyle TV in the context of neo liberalism in educating us to be good citizens. This book was published as a special issue of Continuum Journal of Media and Cultural Studies. Quality TV Janet McCabe, Kim Akass, 2007-09-26. In his seminal book Television's Second Golden Age Robert Thompson described quality TV as best defined by what it is not: it is not regular TV. Audacious maybe, but his statement renewed debate on the meaning of this highly contentious term. Dealing primarily with the post 1996 era shaped by digital technologies and defined by consumer choice and brand marketing, this book brings together leading scholars, established journalists and experienced broadcasters working in the field of contemporary television to debate what we currently mean by quality TV. They go deep into contemporary American television fictions from The Sopranos and The West Wing to CSI and Lost, innovative sometimes controversial always compelling dramas which one scholar has described as now better than the movies. But how do we understand the emergence of these kinds of fiction? Are they genuinely new? What does quality TV have to tell us about the state of today's television market? And is this a new Golden Age of quality TV? Original, often polemic, each chapter proposes new ways of thinking about and defining quality TV. There is a foreword from Robert Thompson and heated dialogue between British and US television critics. Also included are a great coup are interviews with W, Snuffy Walden scored The West Wing among others and with David Chase, The Sopranos creator. Quality TV provides throughout groundbreaking and innovative theoretical and critical approaches to studying television and for understanding the current and future TV landscape.

Performing Television Elizabeth Klaver, 2000. Klaver applies post structuralist theories of subjectivity to drama while ranging through Beckett's plays, National Hockey League games, The Tonight Show, gay and lesbian drama, minority drama, avant garde performance and the topics of theatrical paranoia, the mediatized Imaginary and the spectatorial gaze. By navigating the political minefield of television, sex and violence, Klaver shows how drama can subvert those ideologies that would discipline the performance arts. BOOK JACKET Reality TV June Deery, 2015-02-11. Reality TV has changed television and changed reality even if we are not among the millions who watch. Written for a broad audience, this accessible overview addresses questions such as: How real is reality TV? How do its programs represent gender, sex, class and race? How does reality TV relate to politics, to consumer society, to surveillance? What kind of ethics are on display? Drawing on current media research and the author's own analysis, this study encompasses the history and evolution of reality television, its production of reflexive selves and ordinary celebrity its advertising and commercialization and its spearheading of new relations between television and social media To dismiss this programming as trivial is easy Deery demonstrates that reality television merits serious attention and her incisive analysis will interest students in media studies cultural studies politics sociology and anyone who is simply curious about this global phenomenon

Television Violence P. T. Kelly, 1999 If one culprit is suspected above all others for encouraging society to become more violent and unfeeling it is television This medium which has become so pervasive in the last 50 years seems to play an enormous role in the lives of the vast majority of people But who controls the content which exerts such an enormous influence and to an extent controls the people What are they doing now and what will they be doing tomorrow Is violence essential to sell toothpaste and hamburgers What are our children becoming and what will their children be like Will every child carry a gun or other weapon just waiting for someone to trigger their violent nature and ignite their preprogrammed anger

Exposing Lifestyle Television Gareth Palmer, 2016-04-15 In the last decade lifestyle television has become one of the most dominant television genres with certain shows now global brands with formats exploited by producers all over the world What unites these programmes is their belief that the human subject has a flexible malleable identity that can be changed within television friendly frameworks In contrast to the talk shows of the eighties and nineties where modest transformation was discussed as an ideal advances in technology combined with changing tastes and demands of viewers have created an appetite for dramatic transformations This volume presents case studies from across the lifestyle genre considering a variety of themes but with a shared understanding of the self as an evolving project driven by enterprise Written by an international team of scholars the collection will appeal to sociologists of culture and consumption as well as to scholars of media studies and media production throughout the world

Transformations and Mistranslations is a multidisciplinary collection of essays that focuses on questions raised when a foreign show is adapted for the American market What does it mean to remake a television program What does the process of Americanization entail What might the success or failure of a remade series tell us about the differences between American and British producers and audiences This volume examines British to American television remakes from 1971 to the present The American remakes in this volume do not share a common genre format or even level of critical or popular acclaim What these programs do have in common however is the sense that something in the original has been significantly changed in order to make the program appealing or accessible to American audiences The contributors display a multitude of perspectives in their essays British to American television remakes as a whole are explained in terms of the market forces and international trade that make these productions financially desirable Sanford and Son is examined in terms of race and class issues Essays on Life on Mars and Doctor Who stress television s role in shaping collective cultural memories An essay on Queer as Folk explores the romance genre and also talks about differences in national sexual politics An examination of The Office discusses how the American remake actually endorses the bureaucracy that the British original satiri Polls, Expectations, and Elections Richard Craig,2014-11-13 In modern American presidential campaigning scholars and citizens have bemoaned the effects of electronic media on voters Much has been written about the effects of television ads media management perceived bias and other issues yet one element of today s media environment that most Americans would recognize has not been identified in the public mind expectation setting Journalists regularly tell audiences what actions candidates should take on the campaign trail based solely on whether they're leading or trailing in public opinion polls Polls Expectations and Elections TV News Making in U S Presidential Campaigns follows the rise and proliferation of this phenomenon through a comprehensive content analysis of transcripts of CBS Evening News broadcasts during presidential election campaigns from 1968-2012 Richard Craig uses numerous examples from these transcripts to illustrate how television news has gone from simply reporting poll data to portraying it as nearly the only motivation for anything candidates do while campaigning He argues that with the combination of heightened coverage of campaigns and the omnipresence of poll data campaign coverage has largely become a day to day series of contests with candidates portrayed as succeeding or failing each day to meet expectations of what the candidate at a given position in the polls should do on the campaign trail Highlighting the change in news media and candidate coverage Polls Expectations and Elections will appeal to scholars of media studies political communication and journalism
