would send her mad But she went She began at Easter a time of sin and reflectionandmdash but not hot cross buns as she discovered She hiked olive groves searched for lodgings in refuges and sports centres and did the crying for those who d sponsored her As a child Ailsa s plea was andlsquo Don t cry Don t cry Let me do the crying andrsquo Her walk took that to new extremes Like medieval believers who paid others to carry their sins to holy places and so buy forgiveness Ailsa s donors confessed to anger and envy pride and lust sloth and selfishness among others Along the way their sins became hers She was tempted and she battled On one occasion she was saved by a fellow pilgrim s snoring proving sharing a room with forty belching grunting blokes can be a blessing Miracles also found her Matrons stuffed homemade sausages into her pack Angels in name and nature eased her path And she fell in love with kindness strangers and Spain She came home changedandmdash as were many of her sinners Their stories made her believe in the power of confessionandmdash acknowledging we re all sinners All saints Sinning Across Spain celebrates the blessing of bathtubs the benediction of bunions and the simple act of setting down one foot after the other
