and Ancient R. Cas, J. Wright, 2012-12-06 One of our aims in the book is to provide geologists with a sound basis for making their own well founded interpretations For that reason we cover not only concepts about processes and the nature of the products but also methods and approaches that may be useful in analysing both modern and ancient successions Most importantly we treat the diversity of products in volcanic terrains as facies and we use the method of facies analysis and interpretation as a means of constructing facies models for different volcanic settings These models will we hope be useful as norms for comparison for workers in ancient terrains The idea for this book came into being between 1981 and 1982 when J V W came to Monash University to take up a Monash Postdoctoral Fellowship During this period a short course on facies analysis in modern and ancient successions was put together integrating J V W s extensive volcanological experience in numerous modern volcanic terrains with R A F C s extensive sedimentological and volcanological experience in older volcanic and associated sedimentary successions in the Palaeozoic and Precambrian of Australia The enthusiastic response from the participants to the first short course taught in May 1982 and to subsequent annual re runs encouraged us to develop the short course notes into this book The idea for both the short course and the book arose because we felt that there was no single source available that comprehensively attempted to address the problems of analysing interpreting and understanding the complexity of processes products and stratigraphy in volcanic terrains Our Dynamic Earth: A Primer Matthew R. Bennett, 2022-01-18 Students taking undergraduate degrees in geography ecology earth science and environmental science frequently take an introductory unit in Physical Geography Some will have not done any geography since their early teens while others have more recent knowledge This range of backgrounds can be challenging for both the instructor and the student this primer aims to help A primer is a readable introduction to a subject more technical than a piece of popular science but less detailed than a specialist textbook It aims to give the reader a platform in a subject with which they may be unfamiliar so that they can proceed simultaneously or sequentially to more advanced texts and information Ideally the primer should have something for those without any knowledge while also challenge and entertaining those who do Not quite bedtime reading but a step in that direction Our Dynamic Earth introduces students to the Earth s origins to plate tectonics atmospheric and oceanographic circulation as well as to a range of Earth surface processes Idea to get you started in your studies City Tourism Robert Maitland, Brent W. Ritchie, 2009 Capital city status attracts and drives tourism by enhancing a city s appeal to the tourist and its international standing With a focus on city tourism themes this book examines subjects including the identity of a city in a tourism context and practical matters such as promoting the city as a product By examining tourist activities in national capitals the book addresses issues in capital city development as tourist destinations with a broad international approach and case studies on major tourist cities Natural Stone and World Heritage Ruth Siddall, 2021-11-29 This book is about the stone used to build the castles of Edward I in North West Wales It provides a description of the available geological resources and the building materials used in the construction of Caernarfon Conwy Harlech and Beaumaris Castles It takes a broad view of this subject placing the stone used in the castles in the context of both earlier and later buildings across the region of study from the Neolithic up until the present day The book will serve as a useful source book for geologists archaeologists architects representatives of the natural stone industry historians and cultural heritage management professionals specifically and for academic and non academic communities travellers and tourism industry operators in general
