The Social Networks of Older People Howard Litwin, 1996-10-30 This edited volume examines the social networks of older people in nine countries from a range of perspectives in order to determine the potential of informal support structures to deliver the bulk of care in today's society Researchers from the United States Canada England and Wales France Spain the Netherlands Sweden Finland and Israel present up to date analyses of support networks in each of their countries The social policy implications of the comparative data are critically reviewed The findings clearly suggest that social network availability is diminishing for a significant minority of elderly people However current practice in most countries reveals little purposive interweaving of formal services and informal networks in order to strengthen the function of the latter and to prolong their presumed benefits

The Impact of Social Networks and Social Support on Mental Disorders and Mortality Ziggi Ivan Santini, 2016
INTRODUCTION There is conflicting evidence regarding the role of social support networks in health and wellbeing and more research is needed to address the lack of information The objective of this project is to categorize key indicators of social support and social networks and further to determine the impact of such indicators on mental disorder and mortality
METHODS This project will include three research articles paper I is a review of the literature which involves an investigation into the evidence on associations between social support networks and depression in the general population systematic literature review Paper II is an original research paper that involves an examination of how social network integration predicts all cause mortality among older adults in six Latin American countries India and China prospective analysis Finally paper III is an original research paper involving an investigation into relationship quality positive and negative aspects of social support and social networks with depression anxiety and suicidal ideation in a nationally representative sample of older Irish adults in intimate relationships cross sectional analysis
RESULTS I A number of key indicators of social support and social networks were identified to be associated with depression Generally studies have found protective effects of perceived social support and large diverse social networks against depression in the general population II For older adults in developing countries survival time is significantly reduced in individuals embedded in restricted social networks III For older Irish adults in intimate relationships we found that worse relationship quality with the spouse is positively associated with depression anxiety and suicidal ideation and that restricted social network integration is positively associated with depression
CONCLUSION A number of recommendations have been made for future research in order to make a more comprehensive assessment of the role of social support networks in relation to mental health outcomes Further being embedded in good social support networks is negatively associated with mortality and also a number of outcomes on mental disorder among older adults in the general population Social care and public mental health interventions may be enhanced by tailoring interventions to improve the quantity and quality of social support networks in order to promote population mental health and health status Implications for health research policy and future directions
