International Labour Migration in the Middle East and Asia Kwen Fee Lian, Naomi Hosoda, Masako Ishii, 2019-08-22 The discourse on migration outcomes in the West has largely been dominated by issues of integration but it is more relevant to view immigration in non Western societies in relation to practices of exclusion and inclusion Exclusion refers to a situation in which individuals and groups are usually denied access to the goods services activities and resources associated with citizenship However this approach has been criticised in relation to gender issues which are very relevant to the situation of migrants The authors in this volume address this criticism Furthermore when framed within a North South discourse it may be potentially ethnocentric to assume that the experience of exclusion is cross culturally uniform Indeed work on migration issues has invariably been conducted within such a discourse The contributors go beyond this binary discourse of exclusion versus inclusion which has dominated migration research They examine the situation of migrants in the Middle East and Asia as one that encompasses both exclusion and inclusion addressing related concepts of empowerment ethnocracy the feminisation of migration and gendered geographies of power liberal constraint and multiculturalism individual agency migrant friendly discourses spaces of emancipation and spaces of insecurity The book highlights current research in the Arab Gulf states and examines multiculturalism in Asia more broadly It will be of particular interest to students and researchers in international labour migration studies in the Middle East and Asia

Governing International Labour Migration Christina Gabriel, Hélène Pellerin, 2008 This book offers a critical examination of the way in which the nature and governance of international labour migration is changing within a globalizing environment It examines how labour mobility and the governance of labour migration are changing by exploring the links between political economy and differentiated forms of labour migration Additionally it considers the effects of new social models of inclusion and exclusion on labour migration Therefore the book troubles the conventional dichotomies and categorizations permanent vs temporary skilled vs unskilled legal vs illegal that have informed migration studies and regulatory frameworks Theoretically this volume contributes to an ongoing project of reframing the study of migration within politics and international relations Bringing together an interdisciplinary group of scholars drawing on examples from the European Union North America and Asia Governing International Labour Migration will be of interest to students and scholars of migration studies IPE international relations and economics

The Political Economy of International Labour

Migration Hassan Nawaz Gardezi,1995 Taking a wide ranging view of international labour migration Gardezi gives us deeper insight into the transfers of labour by analyzing the political economy of the countries where labour groups originate He focuses on the conditions under which labour power is reproduced and used The case study further reveals that the myth of migrants returning home with savings knowledge and a longing for material success is more wishful thinking While former studies on labour migration concentrate on its effect on GNP and foreign exchange earnings Gardezi refocusses attention on the migrant workers themselves their hopes and aspirations community life and the working conditions both at home and abroad

International Labor Migration David Bartram,2005-07-22 Studies of international labour migration typically assume that foreign labour is a universal feature of wealthy economies However some wealthy societies do not import workers on a large scale despite employers pressures Using Israel and Japan as empirical cases this comparative historical work investigates why some governments allow employers relatively free access to foreign labour while others require alternative responses to labour shortages
