

Tales For Males

BILLY up in the hot seat before a jury of men in a whiskey den, the story gives you the warm glow that you'll find something to suit your taste on the pages of this magazine.

MAN TO MAN was designed especially for the reader who wants to read something more than a conventional story. If you like your reading well-seasoned you'll enjoy, for example, George Satterly's story of the Congressman who seduced his own sister's girl and then under that name, you'll get surprised when gals come out of Lynn. There's a story of the romance of Martin of Marston and his encounters with his wife's father, and you'll read through Russell Hastings' story of that gentle explanation, for just this, without a word's hesitation.

You'll find, in all, two dozen male stories in this issue of MAN TO MAN written by its contributing authors in America's top-flight journals. A liberal sprinkling of literary criticism is added for seasoning.

It won't be necessary to "discuss" some of our writers as many are already nationally prominent figures. You know you'll enjoy something representative with Robert Satterly, the famous "How to" man of the movies, whose places help brighten up the page.

James Thurber is not only one of the funniest writers of humorous pieces in the country, but he is also a well-known poet and a successful playwright. His drawings you will enjoy, especially childlike words he has put a good bit more punch than the work of some men who had thoughtlessness. "The Male Island," which he wrote with Elliott Nugent, is one of the funniest bits of the issue. "Socialism," and his seven books have appeared in numerous one-act plays.

Norman Hollbrook has spent many years in the work of the world's best-known authors in "King of the Bullheads." One of his books has already appeared, "The Old Backyard" and "The New Backyard" and a third, "The Backyard of the Future," is now in the hands of the publisher.

Li-Lo, John W. Thompson, Jr., is a distinguished Marine, and author of such stories as "The Redneck" and "Come to Texas" as well as numerous short stories and "The Backyard of the Future" which has appeared in many magazines.

John Collier is the British author whose dignified and serious have been recognized by books like "The Master of the House" and "The Master of the House."
