The world and all that is in it belong to the Lord: the earth and all who live on it are his.

Psalm 24:1

A Prayer

...I ask the God of our Lord Jesus Christ,
the glorious Father, to give you the Spirit,
who will make you wise and reveal God to you, so that you will know him.
I ask that your minds may be opened to see his light, so that you will know what is the hope to which he has called you, how rich
are the wonderful blessings he promises
his people, and how very great is his power
at work in us who believe (from Ephesians 1:17-19)

Jesus said...

"Peace is what I leave with you: it is my own peace that I give you"
(John 14:27)

It was a commonly expressed view during the First World War that the conflict had seen a major revival of superstitious beliefs and practices. Churches expressed concerns about the wearing of talismans and amulets; the international press paid considerable interest to the pronouncements of astrologers and prophets; and the authorities in several countries periodically clamped down on fortune tellers and mediums due to concerns over their effect on public morale. Out on the battlefields soldiers of all nations sought to protect themselves through magical and religious rituals; and on the home front people sought out psychics and occult practitioners for news of the fate of their distant loved ones or communication with their spirits. Even away from concerns about the war, suspected witches continued to be abused and people continued to resort to magic and magical practitioners for personal protection, love and success. Uncovering and examining beliefs, practices and contemporary opinions regarding the role of the supernatural in the war years, Owen Davies explores the broader issues regarding early twentieth century society in the West, the psychology of the supernatural during wartime, and the extent to which the war cast a spotlight on the widespread continuation of popular belief in magic.
