Study Of Culture At A Distance:

The Study of Culture at a Distance Margaret Mead, Rhoda Bubeney Métraux, Rhoda Métraux, 2000 In 1953 Margaret Mead and Rhoda Métraux produced The Study of Culture at a Distance a compilation of research from this period This work long unavailable presents a rich and complex methodology for the study of cultures through literature film informant interviews focus groups and projective techniques The Study of Culture at a Distance Margaret Mead, 1953 The Study of Culture at a Distance Margaret Mead, 1971 The Study of Culture at a Distance Margaret Mead, Rhoda Métraux, 1962 The Study of Culture at a Distance. Edited by M. Mead and R. Métraux Margaret Mead, Rhoda Bubeney MÉTRAUX, 1953 Fieldwork in Familiar Places Michele M. Moody-Adams, 2009-06-01 The persistence of deep moral disagreements across cultures as well as within them has created widespread skepticism about the objectivity of morality Moral relativism moral pessimism and the denigration of ethics in comparison with science are the results Fieldwork in Familiar Places challenges the misconceptions about morality culture and objectivity that support these skepticisms to show that we can take moral disagreement seriously and yet retain our aspirations for moral objectivity Michele Moody Adams critically scrutinizes the anthropological evidence commonly used to support moral relativism Drawing on extensive knowledge of the relevant anthropological literature she dismantles the mystical conceptions of culture that underwrite relativism She demonstrates that cultures are not hermetically sealed from each other but are rather the product of eclectic mixtures and borrowings rich with contradictions and possibilities for change The internal complexity of cultures is not only crucial for cultural survival but will always thwart relativist efforts to confine moral judgments to a single culture Fieldwork in Familiar Places will forever change the way we think about relativism anthropologists psychologists historians and philosophers alike will be forced to reconsider many of their theoretical presuppositions Moody Adams also challenges the notion that ethics is methodologically deficient because it does not meet standards set by natural science She contends that ethics is an interpretive enterprise not a failed naturalistic one genuine ethical inquiry including philosophical ethics is a species of interpretive ethnography We have reason for moral optimism Moody Adams argues Even the most serious moral disagreements take place against a background of moral agreement and thus genuine ethical inquiry will be fieldwork in familiar places Philosophers can contribute to this enterprise she believes if they return to a Socratic conception of themselves as members of a rich and complex community of moral inquirers An Introduction to Anthropological Thought, 2nd Edition Jha Makhan, 2009-11-01 This book covers the thought theories meaning and views on the origin history of anthropological thought It analyses and interprets the diffusion structure function and personality of culture It also discusses the theoretical contributions of Indian anthropologies and the pioneering works of some independent sociologists and anthropologists of the world It is useful for students of Anthropology Sociology and those appearing for Central Services examinations UPSC and state service commissions Penal Exceptionalism? Thomas Ugelvik, Jane Dullum, 2011-07-29 In the growing field of comparative criminal justice the Nordic countries are regularly used as exceptions to the global move towards growing rates of imprisonment and tougher less welfare oriented crime control policies Why are the Nordic penal institutions viewed as so different from a non Nordic vantage point Are Nordic prisons and penal policies in fact positive exceptions to the general rule If they are what exactly are the exceptional qualities and why are the Nordic societies lucky enough to have them Are there important overlooked examples of Nordic bad practice in the penal area Could there be a specifically Nordic way of doing prison research contributing to the gap between internal and external perspectives In considering among others the above questions this book explores and discusses the Nordic jurisdictions as contexts for the specific penal policies and practices that may or may not be described as exceptional Written by leading prison scholars from the Nordic countries as well as selected researchers from the English speaking world looking in this book will be particularly useful for students of criminology and practitioners across the Nordic countries but also of relevance in a wider geographical context
