Studying New Zealand History G. A. Wood, 1992

The Palgrave Handbook of History and Social Studies Education Christopher W. Berg, Theodore M. Christou, 2020-04-03 This Handbook presents an international collection of essays examining history education past and present Framing recent curriculum reforms in Canada and in the United States in light of a century long debate between the relationship between theory and practice this collection contextualizes the debate by exploring the evolution of history and social studies education within their state or national contexts With contributions ranging from Canada Finland New Zealand Sweden the Netherlands the Republic of South Africa the United Kingdom and the United States chapters illuminate the ways in which curriculum theorists and academic researchers are working with curriculum developers and educators to translate and refine notions of historical thinking or inquiry as well as pedagogical practice

The Palgrave Handbook of Conflict and History Education in the Post-Cold War Era Luigi Cajani, Simone Lässig, Maria Repoussi, 2019-06-28 This Handbook provides a systematic and analytical approach to the various dimensions of international ethnic and domestic conflict over the uses of national history in education since the end of the Cold War With an upsurge in political social and cultural upheaval particularly since the fall of state socialism in Europe the importance of history textbooks and curricula as tools for influencing the outlooks of entire generations is thrown into sharp relief Using case studies from 58 countries this book explores how history education has had the potential to shape political allegiances and collective identities The contributors highlight the key issues over which conflict has emerged including the legacies of socialism and communism war dictatorships and genocide issues which frequently point to tensions between adhering to and challenging the idea of a cohesive national identity and historical narrative Global in scope the Handbook will appeal to a diverse academic audience including historians political scientists educationists psychologists sociologists and scholars working in the field of cultural and media studies MasterClass in History Education Christine Counsell, Katharine Burn, Arthur Chapman, 2016-10-06 MasterClass in History Education draws on international research and practice to present effective and engaging approaches for history teachers who want to explore the ways in which reading research and reflection can support the development of history teaching and learning in the classroom At the heart of the book is a series of professional enquiries carried out by experienced history teachers working in a range of contexts Each history teacher addresses clear questions arising from their practice and together they illustrate various approaches to data collection data analysis and argument These history teachers also show how they drew on diverse scholarship in history and history education including many publications by other history teachers In eight further chapters other experts ranging from practitioner scholars to researchers in diverse fields such as history history education teacher education teacher research and curriculum theory reflect on the distinctive insights that these teachers offer and explore connections with their own fields The combination of perspectives and the depth of knowledge of the varied contributors reveal the importance of different kinds of relationship between theory and practice The links between classroom realities and research and the critical use of different kinds of text will support history teachers in developing their practice and professional voice Researching History Education Linda S. Levstik, Keith C. Barton, 2018-02-06 The authors research is well known and among the most important American works being done on how children learn history It is thus a great idea to gather this pivotal research in one place The volume offers a new perspective through the authors reflections on the research process It is profound without pomposity ideal for the intended audience the tone is just right There really isn't another book that does what this one does Stephen J Thornton University of South Florida Researching History Education combines a selection of Linda Levstik's and Keith Barton's previous work on teaching and learning history with their reflections on the process of research These studies address students ideas about time evidence significance and agency as well as classroom contexts of history education and broader social influences on students and teachers thinking These pieces widely cited in history and social studies education and typically required reading for students in the area were chosen to illustrate major themes in the authors own work and trends in recent research on history education In a series of new chapters written especially for this volume the authors introduce and reflect on their empirical studies and address three issues suggested in the title of the volume theory method and context Although research on children's and adolescents historical understanding has been the most active area of scholarship in social studies in recent years as yet there is little in depth attention to research methodologies or to the perspectives on children history and historical thinking that these methodologies represent This book fills that need The authors hope is that it will help scholars draw from the existing body of literature in order to participate in more meaningful conversations about the teaching and learning of history Researching History Education provides a needed resource for novice and experienced researchers and will be especially useful in research methodology courses both in social studies and more generally because of its emphasis on techniques for interviewing children the impact of theory on research and the importance of cross cultural comparisons
