Taking Liberties And Into Taking Liberties:

A Narrative of the Minutes of Evidence respecting the Claim of the Berkeley Peerage, as taken before the Committee of Privileges in 1811. Together with the entire evidence of the persons principally concerned. To which are added fac similes of the banns, and register of the marriage [of Frederick Augustus, Earl of Berkeley, and Mary Cole], etc Great Britain. Parliament. Claiming Belonging dives deep into the lives of Muslim American advocacy groups in the post 9 11 era asking how they form and function within their broader community in a world marked by Islamophobia Bias incidents against Muslim Americans reached unprecedented levels a few short years ago and many groups responded through action organizing on the national level to become increasingly visible engaged and assertive Emily Cury draws on more than four years of participant observation and interviews to examine how Muslim American organizations have sought to access and influence the public square and in so doing forge a political identity The result is an engaging and unique study showing that policy advocacy both foreign and domestic is best understood as a sphere where Muslim American identity is performed and negotiated Claiming Belonging offers ever timely insight into the place of Muslims in American political life and in the process sheds light on one of the fastest growing and most internally dynamic American minority groups Complicated Shadows: The Disease and Democracy Peter Baldwin, 2005-05-16 A historical masterpiece. Just when we thought we knew everything about the politics and policies of the HIV/AIDS pandemic, Peter Baldwin surprises us with innovative insights about the sharp differences in policy among countries as well as complex tradeoffs between civil liberties and public goods. This is a refreshing and readable book in which AIDS is used as a lens to understand the public health enterprise ranging from leprosy and syphilis to tuberculosis and SARS. Baldwin offers a deeply historical and comparative understanding of HIV in the industrialized world. Lawrence O. Gostin, author of Public Health Law: Power, Duty, Restraint. Although a vast literature has emerged to chronicle and reflect on the history of the AIDS epidemic since it was first reported almost a quarter of a century ago, there is nothing like Peter Baldwin's probing and synthetic analysis of AIDS in the industrialized world. Building on his masterful Contagion and the State in Europe, 1830-1930, Baldwin has provided a complex historical tapestry of how an epidemic threat has challenged and exposed democracies that thought infectious threats a thing of the past. Ronald Bayer, author of Private Acts: Social Consequences, AIDS, and the Politics of Public Health and coauthor with Gerald Oppenheimer of AIDS: Doctors' Voices from the Epidemic.

Treatments Lisa Diedrich, Creative expression inspired by disease has been criticized as a celebration of victimhood, unmediated personal experience, or just simply bad art. Despite debate, however, memoirs written about illness, particularly AIDS or cancer, have proliferated since the late twentieth century and occupy a highly influential place on the cultural landscape today. In Treatments, Lisa Diedrich considers illness narratives demonstrating that these texts not only recount and interpret symptoms but also describe illness as an event that reflects wider cultural contexts including race, gender, class, and sexuality. Diedrich begins this theoretically rigorous analysis by offering examples of midcentury memoirs of tuberculosis. She then looks at Susan Sontag's Illness as Metaphor, Audre Lorde's The Cancer Journals, and Eve Kosofsky Sedgwick's White Glasses, showing how these breast cancer survivors draw on feminist health practices of the 1970s and also anticipate the figure that would appear in the wake of the AIDS crisis in the 1980s: the politicized patient. She further reveals how narratives written by doctors, Abraham Verghese and Rafael Campo, about treating people with AIDS can disrupt the doctor-patient hierarchy and she explores practices of witnessing that emerge in writing by Paul Monette and John Bayley. Through these records of intensely personal yet universal experience, Diedrich demonstrates how language both captures and fails to capture these scenes of loss and how illness narratives affect the literary, medical, and cultural contexts from which they arise. Finally, by examining the ways in which the sick speak and are spoken for, she argues for an ethics of failure, the revaluation of loss as creating new possibilities for how we live and die. Lisa Diedrich is assistant professor of women's studies at Stony Brook University.
