Listening often involves not understanding what is said, or not listening to the person who is talking and not being listened to by people or others who are present, not in person.

When you are in a group, you may hear the speaker and the other person saying the same. This could be a good thing for the speaker or a bad thing for the listener.

The speaker may be in a group and not hear the speaker who is talking. They may hear a speaker who is not talking. The speaker and the listener may not hear each other and not understand each other.

How Do You Know When You Are Being Listened To?

What does it mean when you feel like you are being listened to?

What do the people who are listening to you do that make you feel like this?

Remember that people who are not listening to you are not listening to you.

For example, the person listening might not look at you or not hear what you are saying.
