Myths and Traditions of the Arikara Indians Douglas R. Parks, 1996-01-01 When trappers and fur traders first encountered the Arikara Indians they saw a settled and well organized people who could be firm friends or fearsome enemies Until the late eighteenth century the Arikaras close relatives of the Pawnees were one of the largest and most powerful tribes on the northern plains For centuries Arikaras lived along the middle Missouri River Today they reside on the Fort Berthold Reservation in North Dakota Though much has been written about the Arikaras their own accounts of themselves and the world as they see it have been available only in limited scholarly editions This collection is the first to make Arikara myths tales and stories widely accessible The book presents voices of the Arikara past closely translated into idiomatic English The narratives include myths of ancient times legends of supernatural power bestowed on selected individuals historical accounts and anecdotes of mysterious incidents Also included in the collection are tales stories the Arikaras consider fiction that tell of the adventures and foibles of Coyote Stuwí and of a host of other characters Myths and Traditions of the Arikara Indians offers a selection of narratives from Douglas R Parks s four volume work Traditional Narratives of the Arikara Indians The introduction situates the Arikaras in historical context describes the recording and translation of the narratives and discusses the distinctive features of the narratives For each story cross references are given to variant forms recorded among other Plains tribes Douglas R Parks is a professor of anthropology and associate director of the American Indian Studies Research Institute at Indiana University His publications include an edition of James R Murie s Ceremonies of the Pawnee Nebraska 1989

Traditional Narratives of the Arikara Indians Douglas R. Parks, 1991-01-01 Until the late eighteenth century the Arikaras were one of the largest and most influential Indian groups on the northern plains For centuries they have lived along the Missouri River first in present South Dakota later in what is now North Dakota

Today they share the Fort Berthold Indian Reservation in North Dakota with the Mandans and Hidatsas. Although their postcontact history and aspects of their culture are well documented, Douglas R. Parks's monumental four-volume work Traditional Narratives of the Arikara Indians represents the first comprehensive attempt to describe and record their language and literary traditions. Volumes 1 and 2 present transcriptions of 156 oral narratives in Arikara and include literal interlinear English translations. Volumes 3 and 4 contain free English translations of those narratives, making available for the first time a broad representative group of Arikara oral traditions that will be invaluable not only to anthropologists and folklorists but to everyone interested in American Indian life and literature. The narratives cover the entire range of traditional stories found in the historical and literary tradition of the Arikara people, who classify their stories into two categories: true stories and tales. Here are myths of ancient times, legends of power bestowed, historical narratives, and narratives of mysterious incidents that affirm the existence today of supernatural power in the world, along with tales of the trickster Coyote and stories of the risqué Stuwí and various other animals. In addition, there are accounts of Arikara ritualism, prayers, and descriptions of how personal names are bestowed and how the Death Feast originated.
