Handbook of Discourse Analysis Michael Handford, James Paul Gee, 2013-06-17 Approaches to discourse analysis Register and genre Developments in spoken discourse Educational applications Institutional applications Identity culture and discourse Envy Up, Scorn Down Susan T. Fiske, 2011-04-21 An insightful examination of why we compare ourselves to those above and below us The United States was founded on the principle of equal opportunity for all and this ethos continues to inform the nation s collective identity In reality however absolute equality is elusive The gap between rich and poor has widened in recent decades and the United States has the highest level of economic inequality of any developed country Social class and other differences in status reverberate throughout American life and prejudice based on another's perceived status persists among individuals and groups In Envy Up Scorn Down noted social psychologist Susan Fiske examines the psychological underpinnings of interpersonal and intergroup comparisons exploring why we compare ourselves to those both above and below us and analyzing the social consequences of such comparisons in day to day life What motivates individuals groups and cultures to envy the status of some and scorn the status of others Who experiences envy and scorn most Envy Up Scorn Down marshals a wealth of recent psychological studies as well as findings based on years of Fiske's own research to address such questions She shows that both envy and scorn have distinctive biological emotional cognitive and behavioral characteristics And though we are all wired for comparison some individuals are more vulnerable to these motives than others Dominant personalities for example express envy toward high status groups such as the wealthy and well educated and insecurity can lead others to scorn those perceived to have lower status such as women minorities or the disabled Fiske shows that one's race or ethnicity gender and education all correlate with perceived status Regardless of whether one is accorded higher or lower status however all groups rank their members and all societies rank the various groups within them We rate each group as either friend or foe able or unable and accordingly assign them the traits of warmth or competence The majority of groups in the United States are ranked either warm or competent but not both with extreme exceptions the homeless or the very poor are considered neither warm nor competent Societies across the globe view older people as warm but incompetent Conversely the very rich are generally considered cold but highly competent Envy Up Scorn Down explores the nuances of status hierarchies and their consequences and shows that such prejudice in its most virulent form dehumanizes and can lead to devastating outcomes from the scornful neglect of the homeless to the envious anger historically directed at Tutsis in Rwanda or Jews in Europe Individuals groups and even cultures will always make comparisons between and among themselves Envy Up Scorn Down is an accessible and insightful examination of drives we all share and the prejudice that can accompany comparison The book deftly shows that understanding envy and scorn and seeking to mitigate their effects can prove invaluable to our lives our relationships and our society

Structure and Improvisation in Creative Teaching R. Keith Sawyer, 2011-06-27 With an increasing emphasis on creativity and innovation in the twenty first century teachers need to be creative professionals just as students must learn to be creative And yet schools are institutions with many important structures and guidelines that teachers must follow Effective creative teaching strikes a delicate balance between structure and improvisation The authors draw on studies of jazz theater improvisation and dance improvisation to demonstrate that the most creative performers work within similar structures and guidelines By looking to these creative genres the book provides practical advice for teachers who wish to become more creative professionals

The Cambridge Handbook of the Learning Sciences R. Keith Sawyer, 2022-04-07 The interdisciplinary field of the learning sciences encompasses educational psychology cognitive science computer science and anthropology among other disciplines The Cambridge Handbook of the Learning Sciences first published in 2006 is the definitive introduction to this innovative approach to teaching learning and educational technology In this significantly revised third edition leading scholars incorporate the latest research to provide seminal overviews of the field This research is essential in developing effective innovations that enhance student learning including how to write textbooks design educational software prepare effective teachers and organize classrooms The chapters illustrate the importance of creating productive learning environments both inside and outside school including after school clubs libraries and museums The Handbook has proven to be an essential resource for graduate students researchers consultants software designers and policy makers on a global scale

Knowledge and Interaction Andrea A. diSessa, Mariana Levin, Nathaniel J.S. Brown, 2015-12-07 Decades of research in the cognitive and learning sciences have led to a growing recognition of the incredibly multi faceted nature of human knowing and learning Up to now this multifaceted nature has been visible mostly in distinct and often competing communities of researchers From a purely scientific perspective siloed science where different traditions refuse to speak with one another or merely ignore one another is unacceptable This ambitious volume attempts to kick start a serious new line of work that merges or properly articulates different traditions with their divergent historical theoretical and methodological commitments that nonetheless both focus on the highly detailed analysis of processes of knowing and learning as they unfold in interactional contexts in real time Knowledge and Interaction puts two traditions in dialogue with one another Knowledge Analysis KA which draws on intellectual roots in developmental psychology and cognitive modeling and focuses on the nature and form of individual knowledge systems and Interaction Analysis IA which has been prominent in approaches that seek to understand and explain learning as a sequence of real time moves by individuals as they interact with interlocutors learning environments and the world around them The volume s four part organization opens up space for both substantive contributions on areas of conceptual and empirical work as well as opportunities for reflection integration and coordination
