David Charles Rose

The Plight Of Emulation Ernest Meissonier French Salon Painting:

The Plight of Emulation Marc Gotlieb, 1996 By the time of Ernest Meissonier's death in 1891 he was among the most famous painters of the nineteenth century Delacroix for instance had hailed him as the incontestable master of our epoch and had felt that Meissonier's posthumous reputation would be greater than his own But Meissonier's renown quickly vanished and to modernist critics his oeuvre composed largely of genre and battle paintings seemed of little value This provocative study of emulation contests the modernist critique and discloses a new aspect of Meissonier and French Salon painters in general many of these artists attempted the ultimately impossible task of remaining loyal to their teachers and other predecessors while at the same time escaping their influence A subtle and gifted painter Meissonier projected a supremely self confident public image Nevertheless he was obsessed by his efforts to prevail over the past Marc Gotlieb examines both Meissonier's career and his painting paying particular attention to the artist's exploration of genre painting as a new form of expression to his use of live models and to his eventually fruitless attempt to complete a massive mural painting that would rival those of the old masters on the grandest scale Using new approaches from art history literature and psychoanalysis The Plight of Emulation offers not only an intellectual biography of an extremely talented artist but also a wide ranging picture of a fascinating era in European cultural history and a convincing analysis of the final impasse of the French Salon

Painting the Prehistoric Body in Late Nineteenth-Century France Sharon Parker, 2018-11-19 In late nineteenth century France when Charles Darwin's theories of evolution had finally begun to permeate French culture and society several academic artists turned to a relatively new sub genre of history painting the prehistoric themed subject This artistic interest in Darwin's theories was manifested as paintings and sculptures of prehistoric humanity engaged in physical conflict with each other or other animals struggling for food or hunting all nineteenth century popular understandings of survival of the fittest This book examines how this sub genre captured the imagination of French Salon painters from the 1880s to early 1900s in particular that of Fernand Cormon 1845-1924 one of the foremost academic painters during the final quarter of the nineteenth century A central argument of this book concerns the unique interpretation of prehistoric humanity that Cormon visualized in his paintings While the vast majority of prehistoric themed images made by his salon colleagues focused on violence combat and sexual conquest Cormon's paintings depict a conflict free humanity in which collaboration and cooperation dominate rather than physical struggle This study probes the French intellectual understanding and appropriation of Darwin's theories and considers how the French mis translation of The Origin of Species by Comte Auguste Royer the first French translator of the text along with Neo Lamarckism and republican ideology in Third Republic France may have collectively shaped Cormon's representation of early humanity The art press overwhelmingly favored Cormon's visualization of the prehistoric world over that of his Salon peers Through extended analysis of the art criticism concerning Cormon's work Sharon Parker argues that critics very clear preference for Cormon's paintings was rooted in their awareness that he utilized the sub genre of the prehistoric as a forum in which to reimagine and revive academic figurative painting at a time when the critical reception of Salon art had reached its nadir. Additionally, this study provides a broad overview of the visual models in particular the anthropological and ethnographic texts and imagery most readily available to Cormon as sources for shaping his vision of the prehistoric world.

Is Paris Still the Capital of the Nineteenth Century? Hollis Clayson, 2017-07-05. Is Paris Still the Capital of the Nineteenth Century. The question that guides this volume stems from Walter Benjamin's studies of nineteenth-century Parisian culture as the apex of capitalist aesthetics. Thirteen scholars test Benjamin's ideas about the centrality of Paris formulated in the 1930s from a variety of methodological perspectives. Many investigate the underpinnings of the French capital's reputation and mythic force which was based largely upon the city's capacity to put itself on display. Some of the authors reassess the famed centrality of Paris from the vantage point of our globalized twenty-first century by acknowledging its entanglements with South Africa, Turkey, Japan, and the United States. The volume equally studies a broader range of media than Benjamin did himself, from modernist painting and printmaking, photography, and illustration to urban planning. The essays conclude that Paris did in many ways function as the epicenter of modernity's international reach, especially in the years from 1850 to 1900, but did so only as a consequence of the idiosyncratic force of its mythic image. Above all, the essays affirm that the study of late nineteenth-century Paris still requires nimble and innovative approaches commensurate with its legend and global aura.

Bazille: Purity, Pose, and Painting in the 1860s, 1998. Krieg in den Medien, 2016-08-09. Wie Kriege dargestellt werden hat Einfluss auf die Kriegsführung. Das gilt nicht erst für die elektronischen Waffengänge moderner Zeitrechnung. Mit dem Zweiten Weltkrieg aber so eine gängige Lesweise hat sich die Wahrnehmung von Kriegen selbst verändert. Was wird perzipiert, was bleibt außen vor, was geht unter in der Flut an Informationen, Nachrichten über Kriege sind immer ungleich auf Interessenlagen bezogen. In den Blick gerät, was Medien verbreiten. Andere Kriege existieren in der Realität, aber nicht im Bewusstsein von Zeitgenossen weltweit. Fiktionale Verarbeitungen von Kriegen können anders und intensiver als die Nachricht die Gewalt reflektieren, sie einordnen, ihr Sinn geben oder sie verwerfen. Sie sind Mittel oder Teil der kriegerischen Strategie und der Propaganda, können aber ebenso gut Gegenentwürfe anbieten zu den Gräueltaten, die sie repräsentieren. Weder Fiktionalität oder Information noch die Art der medialen Umsetzung stellen an sich betrachtet eine Vorentscheidung dar, wie kritisch oder wie affirmativ Kriegshandlungen geschildert oder gedeutet werden. Der vorliegende Band zeigt diese grundsätzliche Ambivalenz in den großen epochalen Umbrüchen der Mediendispositive und den inter- und transmedialen Wandlungen insgesamt. Er reflektiert sie anhand der Geschichte der Einzelmedien wie Fotografie und Malerei, Hörspiel, Tageszeitung, Essay, Internetforum oder Fernsehnachricht, an der Arbeit von PR-Agenturen oder in der fiktionalen Verarbeitung, etwa im Comic. Krieg in den Medien bringt zudem Einzelanalysen und Autorenporträts in den Gattungen Roman, Poetikvorlesung, Spielfilm, Drama oder politisch-philosophische Theorie.

After Kant Michael Sonenscher, 2023-07-11 Tracing the origins of modern political thought through three sets of arguments over history morality and freedom In this wide ranging work Michael Sonenscher traces the origins of modern political thought and ideologies to a question raised by Immanuel Kant about what is involved in comparing individual human lives to the whole of human history How can we compare them or understand the results of the comparison Kant's question injected a new future oriented dimension into existing discussions of prevailing norms challenging their orientation toward the past This reversal made Kant's question a bridge between three successive sets of arguments between the supporters of the ancients and moderns the classics and romantics and the Romans and the Germans Sonenscher argues that the genealogy of modern political ideologies from liberalism to nationalism to communism can be connected to the resulting discussions of time history and values mainly in France but also in Germany Switzerland and Britain in the period straddling the French and Industrial revolutions What is the genuinely human content of human history Everything begins somewhere democracy with the Greeks or the idea of a res publica with the Romans but these local arrangements have become vectors of values that are apparently universal The intellectual upheaval that Sonenscher describes involved a struggle to close the gap highlighted by Kant between individual lives and human history After Kant is an examination of that struggle's enduring impact on the history and the historiography of political thought

Theophile Gautier, Orator to the Artists James Kearns, 2017-12-02 Theophile Gautier a envoye avec un feuilleton plus de trois mille personnes dans l'atelier de M Ingres wrote Champfleury in 1848 For artists critics and readers alike Gautier was the essential figure in French art journalism in the mid nineteenth century During the short lived but pivotal period of the Second Republic when the new administration was committed to reforming all the institutions of the fine arts Gautier deployed the full resources of his brilliant flexible and authoritative writing to support and direct these developments in ways compatible with his commitment to an idealist aesthetic itself under growing pressure from alternative trends in an increasingly competitive art market This first study of all Gautier's art journalism written during the Second Republic provides a long overdue reassessment of Gautier's importance in French nineteenth century visual culture

Oscar Wilde's

Elegant Republic David Charles Rose, 2016-01-14 Why was Paris so popular as a place of both innovation and exile in the late nineteenth century Using French English and American sources this first volume of a trilogy provides a possible answer with a detailed exploration of both the city and its communities who forming a varied cast of colourful characters from duchesses to telephonists artists to beggars and dancers to diplomats crowd the stage Through the throng moves Oscar Wilde as the connecting thread Wilde exploratory Wilde triumphant Wilde ruined This use of Wilde as a central figure provides both a cultural history of Paris and a view of how he assimilated himself there By interweaving fictional representations of Paris and Parisians with historical narrative Paris of the imagination is blended with the topography of the city described by Victor Hugo as this great phantom composed of darkness and light This original treatment of the belle époque is couched in language accessible to all who wish to explore Paris on foot or from an armchair French Master Drawings from the Collection of Muriel Butkin Carter E. Foster, Sylvain Bellenger, Patrick Shaw Cable, Cleveland Museum of Art, 2001 Accompanying an exhibition at the Cleveland Museum of Art last fall and now at the Dahesh Museum in New York this catalog focuses upon the French drawings in Muriel Butkin's highly specialized collection which she has promised to the Cleveland Museum To assemble her diverse yet nicely integrated set of drawings Butkin started buying 18th century French drawings when they were affordable In the mid 1970s with the guidance of art historian Gabriel Weisberg she expanded her collection to include 19th century French drawings These drawings were counter to the mainstream impressionist and postimpressionist taste of the time and focused more on academic French subject matter such as life drawings portraits or compositional studies In the preface Butkin herself reinforces her taste by saying that drawings are much more personal and spontaneous than paintings often demonstrating the artistic process Foster curator of drawings at the Cleveland Museum and other scholars present a well researched volume that contributes new information to a very specialized field of art history It is greatly disappointing however that the bulk of the reproductions are in black and white often missing the subtly colored tones in many of the drawings Nonetheless this is recommended for museum and academic libraries that support graduate programs in art history 183 b w illustrations
