The Persistent Tradition In New South Politics:

Origins of the New South Fifty Years Later John B. Boles, Bethany L. Johnson, 2003 Woodward's work had an enormous interpretative impact on the historical academy and encapsulated the new trend of historiography of the American South, an approach that guided both black and white scholars through the civil rights movement and beyond.

Henry Watterson and the New South Daniel Margolies, 2006-11-24 Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier Journal during the tumultuous decades between the Civil War and World War I, was one of the most influential and widely read journalists in American history. At the height of his fame in the early twentieth century, Watterson was so well known that his name and image were used to sell cigars and whiskey. A major player in American politics for more than fifty years, Watterson personally knew nearly every president from Andrew Jackson to Woodrow Wilson. Though he always refused to run, the renowned editor was frequently touted as a candidate for the U.S. Senate, the Kentucky governor's office, and even the White House. Shortly after his arrival in Louisville in 1868, Watterson merged competing interests and formed the Courier Journal, quickly establishing it as the paper of record in Kentucky, a central promoter of economic development in the New South, and a prominent voice on the national political stage. An avowed Democrat in an era when newspapers were openly aligned with political parties, Watterson adopted a defiant independence within the Democratic Party and challenged the Democrats' consensus opinions as much as he reinforced them. In the first new study of Watterson's historical significance in more than fifty years, Daniel S. Margolies traces the development of Watterson's political and economic positions and his transformation from a strident Confederate newspaper editor into an admirer of Lincoln, a powerful voice of sectional reconciliation, and the nation's premier advocate of free trade. Henry Watterson and the New South provides the first study of Watterson's unique attempt to guide regional and national discussions of foreign affairs. Margolies details Watterson's quest to solve the sovereignty problems of the 1870s and to quell the economic and social upheavals of the 1890s through an expansive empire of free trade. Watterson's political and editorial contemporaries variously advocated free silverism, protectionism, and isolationism, but he rejected their narrow focus and maintained that the best way to improve the South's fortunes was to expand its economic activities to a truly global scale. Watterson's New Departure in foreign affairs was an often contradictory program of decentralized home rule and overseas imperialism, but he remained steadfast in his vision of a prosperous and independent South within an American economic empire of unfettered free trade. Watterson thus helped to bring about the eventual bipartisan embrace of globalization that came to define America's relationship with the rest of the world in the twentieth century. Margolies' groundbreaking analysis shows how Watterson's authoritative command of the nation's most divisive issues, his rhetorical zeal, and his willingness to stand against the tide of conventional wisdom made him a national icon. The Fleming Lectures, 1937--1990 Burl Noggle, 1992-10-01 As a quintessentially southern campus, Louisiana State University has logically spawned some of the most important regional scholarly studies of the twentieth century During the campus golden age in the 1930s such eminent scholars as Cleanth Brooks Robert Penn Warren and Eric Voeglin made LSU one of the leading academic institutions in the country It was during this period that a series called the Walter Lynwood Fleming Lectures in Southern History named in honor of a noted scholar and researcher at LSU in the early 1900s was created to add to the body of knowledge in the developing field of southern history Now considered one of the most distinguished lecture series of its kind the Fleming series has brought to the LSU campus scholars of note who have studied the South in its various aspects Lecturers ranging from C Vann Woodward and Lewis P Simpson to Eric Foner and Drew Gilpin Faust have presented a wide panorama of views and methodological approaches In this book Burl Noggle presents an informative history of the lectures from 1937 through 1990 As a member of the LSU history faculty for more than thirty years Noggle has heard most of the Fleming lectures delivered and has participated in the selection of lecturers He thus brings a rather special perspective to his subject that of an insider who has been intimately involved in the series itself as well as the broader understanding of a mature scholar who has devoted a substantial portion of his career to the analysis of American historiography Noggle focuses on two aspects of the Fleming series On one level he discusses the history of the lectures themselves who lectured on what topic why each lecturer was chose what general historiographical trends prevailed at the time and how each speaker s lectures were related to scholarly currents within the profession On another level Noggle discusses just what the lecturers said about southern history and how they contributed to qualified refuted or revised existing conceptions about southern history The Fleming Lectures 1937 1990 is therefore both a history of the lecture series and an analysis of the history contained in the lectures

Faces the World Tennant McWilliams,Tennant S. McWilliams,2007-01-15 McWilliams book is a subtle exploration of the evolution of southern ideas and actions about foreign policy Virginia Quarterly Review Oratory in the New South Waldo W. Braden,1999-03-01 The thirty years prior to the Civil War were flamboyant and fiery times for the South People had a passion for political issues and an ear for the lusty oratory that could be heard at any gathering social or political In Oratory in the Old South Waldo Braden and his associates looked past the popular myths of that era and uncovered the true nature of the oratory of the times In this sequel to that earlier volume Braden and seven other speech scholars examine the oratory of accommodation that dominated the southern forum in the post Civil War years Speakers of this era they find had to overcome problems of spirit and morale their challenge was to build up the political and personal confidence of a people who were defeated By the same token these speakers had to adapt their oratory to outside influences that had the power to exert military pressure withhold funds and employ negative political coercion The eight essays of the book are developed topically and the issues of racism women s rights states rights industrialization and education are delineated as they weave into the developing story of the New South Among the topics dealt with are the promotion of cultural myths the tactics of Henry W Grady as a propagandist for the New South the oratory of the United Confederate Veterans and the emergence of women as speakers for reform The oft repeated myths and encouragements of the orators helped give southerners the distinction they thought lost a sense of nationalism Once created this cohesive regionalism wrought a power pride and prestige so strong that they defied challenge and made many southerners impervious to change and progress until well after 1950 Oratory in the New South reveals many sources of the South s modern self concept and stands as a unique account of this formative period
