Old Saint Paul's William Harrison Ainsworth, 1890 Old Saint Paul's William Ainsworth, 2018-06-28 The portion of the ensuing Tale relating to the Grocer of Wood street and his manner of victualling his house and shutting up himself and his family within it during the worst part of the Plague of 1665 is founded on a narrative which I have followed pretty closely in most of its details contained in a very rare little volume entitled Preparations against the Plague both of Soul and Body the authorship of which I have no hesitation in assigning to DEFOE Indeed I venture to pronounce it his masterpiece It is strange that this matchless performance should have hitherto escaped attention and that it should not have been reprinted with some one of the countless impressions of the History of the Plague of London to which it forms an almost necessary accompaniment The omission I trust will be repaired by Mr HAZLITT the younger DEFOE S last and best editor in his valuable edition of the works of that great novelist and political writer now in the course of publication It may be added that a case precisely similar to that of the Grocer and attended with the same happy results occurred during the Plague of Marseilles in 1720

Old Saint Paul's William Harrison Ainsworth, 2015-07-08 Excerpt from Old Saint Paul s A Tale of the Plague and the Fire One night at the latter end of April 1665 the family of a citizen of London carrying on an extensive business as a grocer in Wood Street Cheapside were assembled according to custom at prayer The grocer s name was Stephen Bloundel His family consisted of his wife three sons and two daughters He had moreover an apprentice an elderly female serving as cook her son a young man about five and twenty filling the place of porter to the shop and general assistant and a kitchen maid The whole household attended for the worthy grocer being a strict observer of his religious duties as well as a rigid disciplinarian in other respects suffered no one to be absent on any plea whatever except indisposition from morning and evening devotions and these were always performed at stated times In fact the establishment was conducted with the regularity of clock work it being the aim of its master not to pass a single hour of the day unprofitably The ordinary prayers gone through Stephen Bloundel offered up a long and fervent supplication to the most High for protection against the devouring pestilence with which the city was then scourged He acknowledged that this terrible visitation had been justly brought upon it by the wickedness of its inhabitants that they deserved their doom dreadful though it was that like the dwellers in Jerusalem before it was given up to ruin and desolation they had mocked the messengers of God and despised his word that in the language of the prophet they had refused to hearken and pulled away the shoulder and stopped their ears that they should not hear yea had made their heart like an adamant stone lest they should hear the law and the words which the Lord of Hosts had sent in his spirit by the former prophets About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
