Social Evolution And The Modern Western Worldview:

Evolutionary Processes in the Natural History of Religion Hansjörg Hemminger, 2021-09-22 The study of religion by the humanities and social sciences has become receptive for an evolutionary perspective Some proposals model the evolution of religion in Darwinian terms or construct a synergy between biological and non Darwinian processes The results however have not yet become truly interdisciplinary The biological theory of evolution in form of the Extended Evolutionary Synthesis EES is only sparsely represented in theories published so far by scholars of religion Therefore this book reverses the line of view and asks how their results assort with evolutionary biology How can the subject area religion integrated into behavioral biology How is theory building affected by the asymmetry between the scarce empirical knowledge of prehistoric religion and the body of knowledge about extant and historic religions How does hominin evolution in general relate to the evolution of religion Are there evolutionary pre adaptations Subsequent versions of evolutionary biology from the original Darwinism to EES are used in interdisciplinary constructs Can they be integrated into a comprehensive theory The biological concept most often used is co evolution in form of a gene culture co evolution However the term denotes a process different from biological co evolution Important EES concepts do not appear in present models of religious evolution e g neutral evolution evolutionary drift evolutionary constraints etc How to include them into an interdisciplinary approach Does the cognitive science of religion CSR harmonize with behavioral biology and the brain sciences Religion as part of human culture is supported by a complex multi level behavioral system How can it be modeled scientifically The book addresses graduate students and researchers concerned about the scientific study of religion and biologist interested in interdisciplinary theory building in the field

The End of Progress Amy Allen, 2016-01-12 While post and decolonial theorists have thoroughly debunked the idea of historical progress as a Eurocentric imperialist and neocolonialist fallacy many of the most prominent contemporary thinkers associated with the Frankfurt School Jürgen Habermas Axel Honneth and Rainer Forst have defended ideas of progress development and modernity and have even made such ideas central to their normative claims Can the Frankfurt School's goal of radical social change survive this critique And what would a decolonized critical theory look like Amy Allen fractures critical theory from within by dispensing with its progressive reading of history while retaining its notion of progress as a political imperative so eloquently defended by Adorno Critical theory according to Allen is the best resource we have for achieving emancipatory social goals In reimagining a decolonized critical theory after the end of progress she rescues it from oblivion and gives it a

Shanti Kumar's Gandhi Meets Primetime examines how cultural imaginations of national identity have been transformed by the rapid growth of satellite and cable television in postcolonial India. To evaluate the growing influence of foreign and domestic satellite and cable channels since 1991, the book considers a wide range of materials including contemporary television programming, historical archives, legal documents, policy statements, academic writings, and journalistic accounts. Kumar argues that India's hybrid national identity is manifested in the discourses found in this variety of empirical sources. He deconstructs representations of Mahatma Gandhi as the Father of the Nation on the state-sponsored network Doordarshan and those found on Rupert Murdoch's STAR TV network. The book closely analyzes print advertisements to trace the changing status of the television set as a cultural commodity in postcolonial India and examines publicity brochures, promotional materials, and programming schedules of Indian language networks to outline the role of vernacular media in the discourse of electronic capitalism. The empirical evidence is illuminated by theoretical analyses that combine diverse approaches such as cultural studies, poststructuralism, and postcolonial criticism. Human Sexuality Vern L.
