Social Exclusion in Great Britain Matt Barnes, 2019-06-04 Originally published in 2005 In Great Britain the reduction of social exclusion has been at the forefront of New Labour's social policy since 1997 However there is ambiguity about what the notion of social exclusion actually encompasses caused in part by the limited extent of attempts to measure and understand social exclusion empirically This key work addresses this problem employing data from a nationally representative survey of British households to quantify levels of social exclusion and the composition of the socially excluded population It also incorporates data from a European Commission funded household survey to compare social exclusion in Great Britain with eleven other countries in the European Union In the book Matt Barnes argues that social exclusion refers to enduring disadvantage on a wide range of living standards not just those that reflect economic values As well as looking at standard measures of poverty he looks at more relational measures of disadvantage such as neighbourhood discontent and social isolation in order to determine exclusion from the economic social and cultural systems that determine the integration of a person in society

New Social Policy Agendas for Europe and Asia Katherine Marshall, Olivier Butzbach, 2003 The East

Asia crisis of 1997-98 highlighted the need for new models for social policy. A joint project between European and Asian governments brought together over a two-year period the experience of social policy experts from Europe and Asia. This project was financed by the ASEM Asia-Europe Meeting. This document looks at a wide range of issues: social security reform, links between macroeconomics and social policy, labour market policies, gender relations and cross-border migration. Inspired by European experience in similar fields and focusing on ideas and knowledge exchange, the project worked to develop papers and seminars to produce this book.
