Social Power And The Urbanization Of Water Flows Of Power:

Social Power and the Urbanization of Water Erik Swyngedouw, 2004-03-11 Taking as his case study the city of Guayaquil in Ecuador where 600 000 people lack easy access to potable water Erik Swyngedouw aims to reconstruct theoretically and empirically the political social and economic conduits through which water flows and to identify how power relations infuse the metabolic transformation of water as it becomes urban These flows of water which are simultaneously physical and social carry in their currents the embodiment of myriad social struggles and conflicts The excavation of these flows narrates stories about the city s structure and development Yet these flows also carry the potential for an improved more just and more equitable right to the city and its water The flows of power that are captured by urban water circulation also suggest that the question of urban sustainability is not just about achieving sound ecological and environmental conditions but first and foremost about a social struggle for access and control a struggle not just for the right to water but for the right to the city itself

Water System Science and Policy Interfacing Philippe Quevauviller, 2010 Recent discussions among scientists and policy makers have highlighted that knowledge generated by many research and demonstration projects is not reaching policymakers in an efficient way Conversely the consideration of research results by the policy making community is not straightforward and difficulties arise in integrating the latest research developments in legislation The difficulty is enhanced by the fact that the policy making community is not defining its role as client sufficiently well and the dialogue and communication channels are far from ideal to ensure an efficient flow of information An increasing number of experts consider that improvements could be achieved through the development of a science policy interface so that R D results are synthesised in a way to efficiently feed policy implementation and that short medium and long term research needs may be identified This book examines the issue of integrating science into policy with an emphasis on water system knowledge and related policies An important feature of the book is the discussion of science policy interfacing needs illustrated by examples from authors from different countries in relation to water system management This publication is timely in that the science policy interfacing is now identified as a key challenge worldwide with regard to integrated water resource management and therefore the book will be of great interest to scientists water managers and stakeholders Readers will also benefit from a better understanding of the needs benefits and drawbacks of an established transfer mechanism of scientific outputs to policies

Hydrofictions Boast Hannah Boast, 2020-07-06 Water is a major global issue that will shape our future Rarely however has water been the subject of literary critical attention This book identifies water as a crucial new topic of literary and cultural analysis at a critical moment for the world s water resources focusing on the urgent context of Israel Palestine It argues for the necessity of recognising water s vital importance in understanding contemporary Israeli and Palestinian literature showing that water is as culturally significant as that much more obvious object of nationalist attention the land In doing so it offers new insights into Israeli and Palestinian literature and politics and into the role of culture in an age of environmental crisis Hydrofictions shows that how we imagine water is inseparable from how we manage it This book is urgent and necessary reading for students and scholars in Middle East Studies postcolonial ecocriticism the environmental humanities and anyone invested in the future of the world's water Hydrosocial Territories and Water Equity Rutgerd Boelens, Ben Crow, Jaime Hoogesteger, Flora E. Lu, Erik Swyngedouw, Jeroen Vos, 2017-06-01 Bringing together a multidisciplinary set of scholars and diverse case studies from across the globe this book explores the management governance and understandings around water a key element in the assemblage of hydrosocial territories Hydrosocial territories are spatial configurations of people institutions water flows hydraulic technology and the biophysical environment that revolve around the control of water Territorial politics finds expression in encounters of diverse actors with divergent spatial and political geographical interests as a result water in justice and in equity are embedded in these socio ecological contexts The territory building projections and strategies compete superimpose and align to strengthen specific water control claims of various interests As a result actors continuously recompose the territory's hydraulic grid cultural reference frames and political economic relationships Using a political ecology focus the different contributions to this book explore territorial struggles demonstrating that these contestations are not merely skirmishes over natural resources but battles over meaning norms knowledge identity authority and discourses The articles in this book were originally published in the journal Water International

Urban Rivers Stephane Castonguay, Matthew Evenden, 2012-05-10 Urban Rivers examines urban interventions on rivers through politics economics sanitation systems technology and societies how rivers affected urbanization spatially in infrastructure territorial disputes and in flood plains and via their changing ecologies Providing case studies from Vienna to Manitoba the chapters assemble geographers and historians in a comparative survey of how cities and rivers interact from the seventeenth century to the present Rising cities and industries were great agents of social and ecological changes particularly during the nineteenth century when mass populations and their effluents were introduced to river environments Accumulated pollution and disease mandated the transfer of wastes away from population centers In many cases potable water for cities now had to be drawn from distant sites These developments required significant infrastructural improvements creating social conflicts over land jurisdiction and affecting the lives and livelihood of nonurban populations The effective reach of cities extended and urban space was remade By the mid twentieth century new technologies and specialists emerged to combat the effects of industrialization Gradually the health of urban rivers improved From protoindustrial fisheries mills and transportation networks through industrial hydroelectric plants and sewage systems to postindustrial reclamation and recreational use Urban Rivers documents how Western societies dealt with the needs of mass populations while maintaining the viability of their natural resources The lessons drawn from this study will be particularly relevant to today's emerging urban economies situated along rivers and waterways

Bulldozer Revolutions Andrew C. Baker, 2018-11-15 By examining the metropolitan fringes of Houston in Montgomery County Texas and

Washington D C in Loudoun County Virginia this book combines rural environmental and agricultural history to disrupt our view of the southern metropolis Andrew C Baker examines the local boosters gentlemen farmers historical preservationists and nature seeking suburbanites who abandoned the city to live in the metropolitan countryside during the twentieth century These property owners formed the vanguard of the antigrowth movement that has defined metropolitan fringe politics across the nation In the rural South subdivisions reservoirs homesteads and historical villages each obscured the troubling legacies of racism and rural poverty and celebrated a refashioned landscape That landscape s historical and environmental authenticity served as a foil to the alienation and ugliness of suburbia Using a source base that includes the records of preservation organizations and local state and federal government agencies as well as oral histories Baker explores the distinct roots of the environmental politics and the shifting relationship between city and country within these metropolitan fringe regions

Pipe Politics, Contested Waters Lisa Björkman, 2015-09-17 Winner 2014 Joseph W Elder Prize in the Indian Social Sciences Despite Mumbai s position as India s financial economic and cultural capital water is chronically unavailable for rich and poor alike Mumbai s dry taps are puzzling given that the city does not lack for either water or financial resources In Pipe Politics Contested Waters Lisa Björkman shows how an elite dream to transform Mumbai into a world class business center has wreaked havoc on the city s water pipes In rich ethnographic detail Pipe Politics explores how the everyday work of getting water animates and inhabits a penumbra of infrastructural activity of business brokerage secondary markets and sociopolitical networks whose workings are reconfiguring and rescaling political authority in the city Mumbai s increasingly illegible and volatile hydrologies Björkman argues are lending infrastructures increasing political salience just as actual control over pipes and flows becomes contingent on dispersed and intimate assemblages of knowledge power and material authority These new arenas of contestation reveal the illusory and precarious nature of the project to remake Mumbai in the image of Shanghai or Singapore and gesture instead toward the highly contested futures and democratic possibilities of the actually existing city

In the Nature of Cities Nik Heynen, Maria Kaika, Erik Swyngedouw, 2006 Drawing together the theoretical and empirical work of prominent urban scholars this volume explores how interrelated economic political and cultural everyday processes form and transform urban environments
