

A steam locomotive, number 5042, is pulling a passenger train through a scenic landscape. The train is moving along a track that curves through a lush green valley. In the background, a large blue lake is visible, surrounded by rolling green hills and mountains. The sky is clear and blue. The title 'STEAMING Through BRITAIN' is written in large, red, stylized letters across the top of the image.

Steaming Through Britain:

Steaming Through Britain Chris Ellis, 2011-01-04 This lavish new volume explores Britain's extensive railway heritage offering a comprehensive history of their construction, use and subsequent preservation. The book outlines the development of Britain's railways from the coming of steam through to the first age of the train, the big four wartime service, the nationalisation of the network and the advent of diesels and electrification. It incorporates evocative photographs and artworks from the extensive archives of the National Railway Museum. Examples of steam preservation lines featured in the book include the North Yorkshire Moors Railway, North Norfolk Railway, Bluebell Railway, Nene Valley Railway, Severn Valley Railway and Paignton and Dartmouth Railway, which are presented in a useful appendix with contact details and opening times for attractions.

Steaming to Victory Michael Williams, 2013-05-16 In the seven decades since the darkest moments of the Second World War, it seems every tenebrous corner of the conflict has been laid bare, prodded and examined from every perspective of military and social history. But there is a story that has hitherto been largely overlooked. It is a tale of quiet heroism, a story of ordinary people who fought with enormous self-sacrifice, not with tanks and guns but with elbow grease and determination. It is the story of the British railways and above all the extraordinary men and women who kept them running from 1939 to 1945. Churchill himself certainly did not underestimate their importance to the wartime story when in 1943 he praised the unwavering courage and constant resourcefulness of railwaymen of all ranks in contributing so largely towards the final victory. And what a story it is. The railway system during the Second World War was the lifeline of the nation, replacing vulnerable road transport and merchant shipping. The railways mobilised troops, transported munitions, evacuated children from cities and kept vital food supplies moving where other forms of transport failed. Railwaymen and women performed outstanding acts of heroism Nearly 400 workers were killed at their posts and another 2 400 injured in the line of duty Another 3 500 railwaymen and women died in action The trains themselves played just as vital a role The famous Flying Scotsman train delivered its passengers to safety after being pounded by German bombers and strafed with gunfire from the air There were astonishing feats of engineering restoring tracks within hours and bridges and viaducts within days Trains transported millions to and from work each day and sheltered them on underground platforms at night a refuge from the bombs above Without the railways there would have been no Dunkirk evacuation and no D Day Michael Williams author of the celebrated book On the Slow Train has written an important and timely book using original research and over a hundred new personal interviews This is their story A Steam Engine Pilgrimage Anthony Burton,2017-02-28 Anthony Burton has traveled from the Highlands of Scotland to the south west of England in pursuit of his passion for the steam engine in all its different forms He has traveled on narrow gauge railways in Wales and enjoyed the splendor of main line journeys behind some of the grandest locomotives ever built He has shoveled coal into the boiler of an old Clyde Puffer while steaming down Scotlands west coast and luxuriated in the elegance of a Windermere steam launch He has marveled at the magnificence of the great Victorian pumping engines and their elaborately decorated engine houses and spends time every year helping to oil and polish an old mill engine to get it ready to receive visitors He has reveled in the fun of the steam fair and shared a ride in a replica of Richard Trevithicks extraordinary steam carriage with a direct descendant of the great engineer All these experiences and more are brought together in this lively narrative in which the author shares his own sense of excitement and places each visit within its historical context Above all this book is a tribute to all those anonymous volunteers whose hard work and dedication have kept this great tradition alive Correspondence Concerning Claims Against Great Britain: General appendix.
