Abstract: Introduction: Smoking in pregnancy is associated with negative health outcomes for both mothers and babies; e-cigarettes, which contain nicotine without hazardous tobacco, may offer an additional smoking cessation strategy for pregnant women. Although e-cigarettes are being increasingly offered within services, there is limited understanding about whether e-cigarettes can improve smoking cessation support for pregnant individuals. This study aimed to explore service users' experiences of using e-cigarettes as a tool for smoking cessation during pregnancy. Methods: Semi-structured interviews were conducted with 14 women who had accepted one of two pilots and were analysed using inductive reflexive thematic analysis. The findings from each site were integrated to develop qualitative insight. Results: Participants largely had positive perceptions of the free and easy-to-use e-cigarette, preferring it to nicotine replacement therapies. The desire to have a healthy pregnancy and baby and the inclusion of non-judgemental behavioural support facilitated motivation to quit. Many participants reduced or quit tobacco use, with positive social and health implications reported. However, numerous barriers to quitting were present and intentions about long-term quitting of combustible cigarettes and e-cigarettes were mixed and uncertain. Conclusions: Providing e-cigarettes within smoking cessation services was indicated to be a positive and effective strategy for pregnant women trying to quit tobacco. However, numerous barriers to quitting and staying quit remained, suggesting scope for further improvements to smoking cessation support for pregnant women.

1. Introduction

There are many recognised detrimental health effects associated with smoking tobacco during pregnancy, including preterm birth, foetal mortality, stillbirth, birth malformations (e.g., oral clefts), low birth weight, and sudden infant death syndrome [1]. Women who smoke during pregnancy may also experience negative moral judgements and stigma [2] and are more likely to have poorer mental wellbeing that can further impede smoking cessation [3]. In the United Kingdom (UK), 8.8% of women are currently smoking at the time of birth [4], with national targets to reduce this figure to 6% [5]. With around 600,000 live births in England and Wales in 2022 [6], there is an urgent need to improve uptake and engagement for smoking cessation programmes targeting pregnant women.

Pregnancy: Mother and Child I.J. Chasnoff, 2012-12-06 With the emergence of the biological sciences in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries some explanations of congenital malformations with a basis in scientific fact were formulated It was not however until the thalidomide tragedy in 1961 that the necessity for further study of the effects of environmental factors on congenital malformations was recognized By the early 1970s concentrated efforts had begun to be directed toward evaluating the effects on the unborn child of mood altering drugs taken during pregnancy Over the past decade research and treatment programs have led to the recognition of a full range of psychoactive drugs that affect the developing fetus either somatically or behaviorally Programs for the treatment of the pregnant drug addict have been developed which concentrate not only on the pharmacologic therapy of the woman but also on the social and psychologic characteristics that place her and her unborn child at risk This book is an attempt to bring together clinicians and researchers who have been active in developing programs for the recognition and management of the chemically dependent pregnant woman and her newborn The contributions of the multiple disciplines which the authors represent emphasize the need for a multifactorial approach to the problems of drug use and abuse during pregnancy It is hoped that through this type of approach a better future for substance exposed infants innocent bystanders in the process of addiction can be assured Ira J Chasnoff vii Contributing Authors I J CHASNOFF MD W Directory, On-going Research in Smoking and Health ,
