Stereotypes And Prejudice In Conflict:

Stereotypes and Prejudice in Conflict Daniel Bar-Tal, Yona Teichman, 2009-12-03 In the last two decades the study of social stereotypes and prejudice has become one of the central interests in social psychology in particular One reflection of this growing interest is the focus on shared stereotypes and prejudices The primary reason for this development is the recognition that stereotypes and prejudice play a determinative role in shaping intergroup relations In situations of conflict they are simultaneously outcomes of the accumulated animosity between the involved groups and also feed on the continuation of the conflict by furnishing the cognitive affective basis for the experienced mistrust by the parties In spite of this recognition no systematic analysis of the stereotypes and prejudice was carried out in real situations This book tries to rectify this by applying a general and universal conceptual framework to the study of the acquisition and development of stereotypes and prejudice in a society involved in an intractable conflict

Kruglanski, Wolfgang Stroebe, 2013-07-05 The study of stereotyping and prejudice is a study of human nature group membership and intergroup relationships It sheds light on each of these aspects of social psychology With respect to the first two it has been observed that since groups provide the best framework for satisfying various human needs individuals continuously organize themselves in collectives They belong to a variety of groups many of which they voluntarily select and some to which they are ascribed Group membership therefore is one of the most salient and important of an individual's characteristics The implication of this characteristic is that human beings not only constantly classify other people into group categories either by identifying membership or constructing their own categories but also judge and evaluate them on this basis The stereotypes and prejudice are outcomes of this process They are the beliefs and attitudes toward members of another group In addition the study of stereotyping and prejudice reflects an interest in inter group relationships While we recognize that a discussion of intergroup relationships may focus on behaviors describing actions such as confrontations violence wars cooperation alliance negotiation or coordination we also believe that each of these intergroup behaviors is mediated by perceptions beliefs and attitudes In the case of intergroup behaviors the listed actions are not performed instinctively or mindlessly but are preceded by cognitive processes which among other outputs involve the formation of stereotypes and prejudice toward the other group Stereotyping and Prejudice Daniel Bar-Tal, Carl F. In sum, the subject of this study is addressing the contributions of the rehabilitation as the protection of peace to the social reconciliation process as formed by the societies living in Northern Ireland and its continuation by discussing the rehabilitation process with reference to the example of Northern Ireland in the phase of transforming conflict. One of the main research questions of this study is to present the contribution of the rehabilitation process on peace within the context of conflict administration. In the first part of this book, the stage of rehabilitation in the development process of conflict administration is discussed. In the second part of this book, the structural reasons of conflict will be approached and Belfast Agreement, which can be described as a reconciliation document of parties, will be analysed. The Psychology of Radicalization and Terrorism Willem Koomen, Joop Van Der Pligt, 2015-11-19

Terrorism and radicalization have a long history, but in recent years their prominence has been a particularly conspicuous and influential feature of the global political landscape This important book presents an overview of the processes involved in radicalization and terrorism and introduces a systematic framework which captures the most crucial individual and social factors involved in determining these processes The authors begin by considering the possible role of prejudice economic deprivation and discrimination and the cognitive responses and emotions they can trigger Such responses tend in turn to increase the importance of group membership and promote intergroup differentiation and polarization a process which is often accompanied by more pronounced and more extreme religious and ideological beliefs The book also describes the role of cultural values and social climate in processes of radicalization as well as the role of personality factors and demographics such as age and marital status As for violent terrorist action itself this final most radical stage is elicited by a number of group factors such as groupthink isolation and leadership Certain cognitive mechanisms for example dehumanizing the target and attributing responsibility elsewhere can also provide excuses for violence The book explores why some groups turn to violence and others don't and it addresses processes of disengagement deradicalization programs and other methods used to inhibit the spread of radicalization and terrorism The Psychology of Radicalization and Terrorism takes a unique and systematic approach to a vital topic integrating knowledge from diverse literatures and using social psychology as a basis for comprehending human behaviour It will be essential reading for students and researchers from all disciplines seeking a greater understanding of terrorism and violent political conflict in all its forms
