Tate, 2017-09-21 In the years after the discovery of gold in California thousands of fortune seekers made their way west joining the greatest mass migration in American history The gold fields were only one destination as emigrants pushed across the Great Plains Great Basin and Oregon Territory in unprecedented numbers following the Oregon California and Mormon Trails to the verdant Willamette Valley or Mormon settlements in the Salt Lake Valley Seeing the Elephant they often called the journey referring to the wondrous sights and endless adventures met along the way The firsthand accounts of those who made the trip between 1850 and 1855 that are collected in this third volume in a four part series speak of wonders and adventures but also of disaster and deprivation Traversing the ever changing landscape these pioneers braved flooded rivers endured cholera and hunger and had encounters with Indians that were often friendly and sometimes troubled Rich in detail and diverse in the experiences they relate these letters diary excerpts recollections and reports capture the voices of women and men of all ages and circumstances hailing from states far and wide and heading west in hope and desperation Their words allow us to see the grit and glory of the American West as it once appeared to those who witnessed its transformation Michael L Tate begins the volume with an introduction to this middle phase of the trails history A headnote and annotations for each document sketch the author s background and reasons for undertaking the trip and correct and clarify information in the original manuscript The extensive bibliography identifies sources and suggests further reading

Landscapes of Promise William G. Robbins, 2009-11-23 Landscapes of Promise is the first comprehensive environmental history of the early years of a state that has long been associated with environmental protection Covering the period from early human habitation to the end of World War II William Robbins shows that the reality of Oregon s environmental history involves far more than a discussion of timber cutting and land use planning Robbins demonstrates that ecological change is not only a creation of modern industrial society Native Americans altered their environment in a number of ways including the planned annual burning of grasslands and light burning of understory forest debris Early Euro American settlers who thought they were taming a virgin wilderness were merely imposing a new set of alterations on an already modified landscape Beginning with the first 18th century traders on the Pacific Coast alterations to Oregon s landscape were closely linked to the interests of global market forces Robbins uses period speeches and publications to document the increasing commodification of the landscape and its products Environment melts before the man who is in earnest wrote one Oregon booster in 1905 reflecting prevailing ways of thinking In an impressive synthesis of primary sources and historical analysis Robbins traces the transformation of the Oregon landscape and the evolution of our attitudes toward the natural world
