Sudan Abbas Abdelkarim, Tony Barnett, 2013-12-16 The authors propose that the Gezira scheme has played a paradoxical role in the capitalist transformation of the Sudan reinforcing some non capitalist production relations while at the same time acting as an engine for the peripheral capitalist development Improvising Planned Development on the Gezira Plain, Sudan, 1900-1980 Maurits W. Ertsen, 2015-11-04 The typical image of the Gezira Scheme the large scale irrigation scheme started under British colonial rule in Sudan is of a centrally planned effort by a central colonial power controlling tenants and cotton production However any idea l s of planned irrigation and profit in Gezira had to be realized by African farmers and European officials who both had their own agendas Projects like Gezira are best understood in terms of continuous negotiations This book rewrites Gezira s history in terms of colonial control farmers actions and resistance and the broader development debate Sudan Abbas Abdelkarim, Tony Barnett, 2013-12-16 The authors propose that the Gezira scheme has played a paradoxical role in the capitalist transformation of the Sudan reinforcing some non capitalist production relations while at the same time acting as an engine for the peripheral capitalist development Frontiers of Medicine in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, 1899-1940 Heather Bell, 1999-06-10 Much recent work on the history of colonial medicine argues that medicine was the handmaiden of colonial power and of capitalism Dr Bell challenges this interpretation through careful investigation of the complicated relationship between medicine politics and capital in the Anglo Egyptian Sudan Subverting the accepted wisdom that colonial medicine consisted primarily of white male doctors treating black patients Dr Bell highlights the important role of women and of African and non European practitioners of Western medicine She moves beyond the realm of medical practice to consider the relationship between medical research and colonial power And she argues that a new international medicine emerged during the interwar period modifying and even supplanting existing colonial relationships Frontiers of Medicine examines the physical epidemiological and professional boundaries that endlessly preoccupies colonial officials Emphasising the tenuousness of colonial power it includes chapters on midwifery training and female circumcision on health and racial ideology and on the quest to find the yellow fever virus in East Africa Accepted wisdom maintains that colonial medicine consisted primarily of white doctors treating black patients that it was mainly about medical practice and that it was driven by colonial relationships Dr Bell subverts these notions with detailed evidence of the participation of women and native Africans as trained medical personnel in the Anglo Egyptian Sudan and demonstrates the tenuousness of colonial power in practice There are chapters on midwifery training and female circumcision on health and racial ideology and on the quest to find yellow fever virus in East Africa Dr Bell also investigates the relationship between colonial power and medical research arguing that a new international medicine emerged during the inter war period

Technology and Transition Abdelkader Djeflat, Girma Zawdie, 2014-01-14 The Maghreb countries had a promising start in economic growth after independence For the most part they thrived on industrialisation by import substitution but unfortunately this strategy left them with macroeconomic and structural imbalances which together have effectively constrained their ability to compete in the world economic system and to catch up with the rapidly changing global technological economic circumstances Issues relating to aspects of technology transfer to the Maghreb strategies for technological and resource development and the integration of education and R D systems with the productive systems of the economies in the region are discussed along with relevant cases from Mexico China South Korea India and Bangladesh

Historical Dictionary of the Sudan Robert S. Kramer, Richard Andrew Lobban, Carolyn Fluehr-Lobban, 2013 The Republic of the Sudan was long the largest country in Africa and according to the general consensus also one of the least successful in many ways This was not entirely its fault since it lay along the fault line between Muslim and Christian Africa and between the Nile Valley civilizations and African Sudanic cultures This partly explains the long and bloody warfare waged by the Southerners to achieve independence which they did in July 2011 So this hefty book actually covers not one but two states This fourth edition of the Historical Dictionary of the Sudan does so first through a lengthy and detailed chronology tracing its relatively few successes and numerous failures The introductory essay does an admirable job of putting it all in perspective But the most informative part is the dictionary with now over 700 entries for this fourth edition They deal with important personalities politics the economy society culture religion and inevitably the civil war There are also appendixes and an extensive bibliography

War and Underdevelopment: Country experiences Frances Stewart, Edmund Valpy Knox Fitzgerald, 2001 This series traces the economic and social consequences of conflict both theoretically and through empirical investigations including seven country case studies

Making Water Security Hermen Smit, 2020-02-04 This book examines Nile water security through the morphology of the river it uses the always changing form of the river as a theoretical and empirical device to map and understand how infrastructures and discourses dynamically interact with the Nile By bringing a history of two centuries of dam development on the Nile in relation with the drainage of a hill slope in Ethiopia on the one hand and irrigation reform in Sudan on the other the author shows how the scales units and populations figuring in projects to securitize the river emerge through the rearrangement of its water and sediments The analysis of Making water security is more than yet another story of how modern projects of water security have legitimized often violent disposessions of Nile land and water It shows how no water user is confined by the roles assigned by project engineers and planners As ongoing modern development of the river reduces the prospects for new large diversions of water the targeted subjects of development and modernization make use of newly opened spaces to carve out their own projects They creatively mobilize old irrigation and drainage infrastructures in ways that escape the universal logic of water security

Weaving the Social Networks of Women Migrants in Sudan Awatif Ata Elmannan Elageed, 2008 The Gezira Scheme GS area in the central Sudan is considered a melting pot for migrants of different origins and whose lives are intertwined with the Scheme land This book offers a qualitative analysis of social networks of women migrants of different origins and age groups who are engaged in the agricultural labour force of the GS It looks at the social interactions the diversity of social processes and the functions and functioning of social networks of women that shape their everyday life Special emphasis is given to the means by which women get work opportunities and undertake work negotiations Strategies that women apply to solve problems arising at work and in their private sphere are explored The differential responses concerning ethnicity based differences are analysed A combination of social networks theory and an actor oriented perspective both framed in constructivist terms guided the analysis To illustrate the complete picture of gendered social realities additional notions such as social security and social capital are introduced Evidence shows that women are actors and acquire agency and their social networks serve multiple purposes and facilitate a wide range of settings Examining the social networks by drawing upon a sociological approach provides new insights into the social networks theory and postulates additions to the actor oriented approach and proposes new contributions to both theories      Capitalism and Development Leslie Sklair, 2002-09-11 This collection draws together a distinguished group of authors to explore how capitalism contributes to the development and underdevelopment of the Third World It provides a superb overview of key concepts such as capitalism development modernization and dependency
