The Lady Persuaders:

The Lady Persuaders Helen Woodward, 1960 Manipulating Images Tawnya J. Adkins Covert, 2011-03-03

Manipulating Images World War II Mobilization of Women through Magazine Advertising explores gendered and class based representations of American women in women's magazine advertisements published during the period surrounding the Second World War. Focusing on the interrelationships among political, economic and social forces in the construction of prevailing cultural images and gender roles for women in society, the book examines both the process of creating and the resulting content of wartime mobilization messages found in magazine advertising aimed at American women. The unique circumstances of the Second World War provide a window where the continuous but normally implicit interactions among the social forces which construct class differentiated gendered expectations for women in society are revealed, recorded and made accessible for study. During this period, the federal government altered the prevailing media representations of women and women's roles in response to widespread labor shortages stemming from the movement of male workers into the armed forces and increased demand for military and consumer goods. The advertising industry, business leaders and media representatives cooperated with the federal government in the creation of labor mobilization and other wartime campaigns. Two types of data are examined to assess the changing nature of the relationships among government, business and media and the resulting media images and messages regarding women's roles. First, the study explores archived government documents that illuminate the relationships among government, business and media as they responded to the needs and conditions of war. Second, this book examines advertisements published in women's magazines before, during and following the Second World War.

All-American Girl Frances B. Cogan, 2010-08-01 Our image of nineteenth century American women is generally divided into two broad classifications: victims and revolutionaries. This divide has served the purposes of modern feminists well, allowing them to claim feminism as the only viable role model for women of the nineteenth century. In All American Girl, however, Frances B. Cogan identifies amid these extremes a third ideal of femininity: the Real Woman. Cogan's Real Woman exists in advice books and manuals as well as in magazine short stories whose characters did not dedicate their lives to passivity or demand the vote. Appearing in the popular reading of middle class America from 1842 to 1880, these women embodied qualities that neither the True Women, conventional ladies of leisure, nor the early feminists fully advocated, such as intelligence, physical fitness, self-sufficiency, economic self-reliance, judicious marriage and a balance between self and family. Cogan's All American Girl reveals a system of feminine values that demanded women be neither idle nor militant.

The Model Man Hans Krabbendam, 2022-06-08 Edward William Bok was the most famous Dutch American in early twentieth century America thanks to his thirty year editorship of the Ladies Home Journal, the most prestigious women's magazine of the day. This first complete coverage of Edward Bok's life places him against his ethnic background and portrays him as the spokesman for and the mold of the American middle class between 1890 and 1930. He acted as a mediator between a Victorian and a modern society reconciling consumerism with idealism As a Dutch immigrant he became a model for successful adaptation to a new country and modern times He used his national reputation to restore America s internationalism in the 1920s His life story is relevant to those interested in the history of immigration journalism the rise of big business the women s movement and the Progressive Movement Ad Women Juliann Sivulka,2012-12-27 Following three key periods in the history of American advertising which represent eras of major social change this work describes how the recognition of women as primary consumers has resulted in the hiring of more women to promote products for this target audience Inarticulate Longings Jennifer Scanlon,2020-10-28 Inarticulate Longings explores the contradictions of a social agenda for women that promoted both traditional roles and the promises of a growing consumer culture by examining the advertising industry in the early 20th century Exploring Mass Media for A Changing World Ray A Hiebert,2017-10-23 Beautifully written and class tested Exploring Mass Media for a Changing World provides a comprehensive but modestly priced text around which instructors can develop a customized teaching package Written for introductory courses it covers essential information students need in order to understand the media the mass communication process and the role of media in society It summarizes basic generally agreed upon principles theories significant historical events and essential facts but does so in a tightly written readable style Taken together this information can be thought of as a minimum repertoire that all citizens of the information age need in order to become literate consumers and users of mass communication Features include Historical Framework For ease of comprehension media processes and individual media are placed in historical context to show their technological evolution and the effects of those changes on society Organization The first seven chapters deal with the evolution of communication theories and processes common to all media The next five deal with specific media in the chronological order in which they became mass media Chapters 13 and 14 introduce two non media institutions advertising and public relations whose exploration is essential in order to understand how mass media functions in our society Finally chapter 15 returns to the theme of technological evolution and its effects on society with an in depth discussion of the internet Flexibility Because it is concise affordable and comprehensive it can be used either as a stand alone text in mass media courses or as part of an instructional package in courses where mass communication is one of several major units Themes The following themes are introduced early and carried throughout a the evolution of media technology and its effects on society b the global and culture bound characteristics of mass media and c the need for media literacy in the 21st century Supplements An accompanying instructor s manual begins with a chapter length essay on teaching the mass media course then offers the following items for each chapter topical outline and key vocabulary key ideas to be emphasized and pitfalls to be avoided discussion questions objective and essay test items and both print and nonprint resources for further study Advertising to the American Woman, 1900-1999 Daniel Delis Hill,2002 The author focuses on the marketing perspective of the topic and illustrates how women s roles in society have shifted during the past century Among the key issues explored is a peculiar dichotomy of American advertising that served as a conservative reflection of society and at the same time became an underlying force of progressive social change. The study shows how advertisers of housekeeping products perpetuated the Happy Homemaker stereotype while tobacco and cosmetics marketers dismantled women's stereotypes to create an entirely new type of consumer.

Oratorical Culture in Nineteenth-century America Gregory Clark, S. Michael Halloran, 1993 Gregory Clark and S. Michael Halloran bring together nine essays that explore change in both the theory and the practice of rhetoric in the nineteenth-century United States. In their introductory essay Clark and Halloran argue that at the beginning of the nineteenth century rhetoric encompassed a neoclassical oratorical culture in which speakers articulated common values to establish consensual moral authority that directed community thought and action. As the century progressed, however, moral authority shifted from the civic realm to the professional, thus expanding participation in the community as it fragmented the community itself. Clark and Halloran argue that this shift was a transformation in which rhetoric was reconceived to meet changing cultural needs. Part I examines the theories and practices of rhetoric that dominated at the beginning of the century. The essays in this section include Edward Everett and Neoclassical Oratory in Genteel America by Ronald F. Reid, The Oratorical Poetic of Timothy Dwight by Gregory Clark, The Sermon as Public Discourse by Austin Phelps, and The Conservative Homiletic Tradition in Nineteenth-Century America by Russell Hirst. Part 2 examines rhetorical changes in the culture that developed during that century. The essays include The Popularization of Nineteenth-Century Rhetoric by Elocution and the Private Learner by Nan Johnson, Rhetorical Power in the Victorian Parlor by Godey's Lady's Book, and The Gendering of Nineteenth-Century Rhetoric by Nicole Tonkovich. Jane Addams and the Social Rhetoric of Democracy by Catherine Peaden, The Divergence of Purpose and Practice on the Chatauqua by Keith Vawter, Self-Defense by Frederick J. Antczak, and Edith Siemers and The Rhetoric of Picturesque Scenery by S. Michael Halloran.

Modernism, Gender, and Culture Lisa Rado, 2013-09-05 Focusing on cultural practices and gender issues during a period of the early 20th century that witnessed radical transformations in sex roles, this anthology of original and one classic essays will generate a greater understanding of women's contributions to modernist culture and explore how that culture was affected by gender issues. The essays provide a wealth of insights into literature, painting, architecture, design, anthropology, sociology, religion, science, popular culture, music, issues of race and ethnicity, and the influence of 20th-century women and sexual politics.
