The Battlefields Of Britain And Ireland:

The Battlefields of Britain and Ireland Howard Green,1983-01-01 Guide to the Battlefields of Britain and Ireland Howard Green (Lt-Colonel.),1973 Guide to the battlefields of Britain and Ireland Howard Green,1973 Guide to the Battlefields of Britain and Ireland Howard Green (tenente colonnello.),1973 A Brief Guide To British Battlefields David Clark,2015-02-26 A very readable work of reference offering a survey in chronological order from AD 84 to 1746 of the major battles which have taken place on British soil from the Roman occupation to Culloden the last battle fought on British soil In this way the book can be read as a continuous narrative while each entry also stands alone as a self contained guide The battles are grouped into relevant sections such as the Wars of the Roses the English Civil Wars and the Jacobite Rebellions within broader historical periods Each period is prefaced by a presentation of the nature of warfare and is enhanced by a feature article of specialist interest Every entry includes a narrative of events leading up to the battle a vivid description of the battle itself and an assessment of the long and short term consequences In addition there is useful information for visits including precise identification of the location details of access to and features of each site The book is illustrated throughout with maps and a plate section Fields of Battle P. Doyle,Matthew R. Bennett,2013-03-14 Terrain has a profound effect upon the strategy and tactics of any military engagement and has consequently played an important role in determining history In addition the landscapes of battle and the geology which underlies them has helped shape the cultural iconography of battle certainly within the 20th century In the last few years this has become a fertile topic of scientific and historical exploration and has given rise to a number of conferences and books The current volume stems from the international Terrain in Military History conference held in association with the Imperial War Museum London and the Royal Engineers Museum Chatham at the University of Greenwich in January 2000 This conference brought together historians geologists military enthusiasts and terrain analysts from military academic and amateur backgrounds with the aim of exploring the application of modern tools of landscape visualisation to understanding historical battlefields This theme was the subject of a Leverhulme Trust grant F 345 E awarded to the University of Greenwich and administered by us in 1998 which aimed to use the tools of modern landscape visualisation in understanding the influence of terrain in the First World War This volume forms part of the output from this grant and is part of our wider exploration of the role of terrain in military history Many individuals contributed to the organisation of the original conference and to the production of this volume Medieval Warfare Maurice Hugh Keen,2001 Britons and their Battlefields Ian Atherton,2024-08-19 While much attention has been paid to the commemoration of conflict in the twentieth century this book is the first to consider conflict memory in the long term arguing that modern practices were not created out of the mud of the trenches but evolved from much longer practices From the fourteenth century to the present day this work analyses the changing commemoration and memories of British battlefields at home and overseas from Bannockburn 1314 to Bosworth 1485 to Basra 2003 9 Across these seven centuries there has been a series of recurring post battle rituals that have shaped and continue to shape memories of conflict Three distinct but overlapping periods of memory can be delineated In the later Middle Ages battlefields were consecrated by the burial of the fallen and often by the erection of a battlefield cross or chapel or chantry to pray for the dead The second phase began with the Protestant Reformation in the 1530s when pilgrimage and prayers for the dead were abolished and battlefield chantries were dissolved and many battlefield crosses were demolished Memories shifted from the dead to the living especially the bodies of surviving veterans who commemorated the conflict by their wounds and from soil and stone to print and ink The third phase began in the eighteenth century when antiquaries and others established new monuments on past battlefields Monuments to survivors and the dead were established on contemporary battlefields such as Waterloo once again hailed as sacred ground hallowed by bloodshed fit destinations for a pilgrimage Not just officers but ordinary soldiers began to be memorialized by name on the battlefield culminating in the cult of the names of the dead enshrined by the creation of the War Graves Commission in 1917 and the idea that battlefields should be preserved unchanged as seen in modern heritage management Drawing on a wide variety of literary and historical sources and taking a uniquely long duration approach the book explores and links memory making practices from across the period to reconsider the ways in which battlefields are commemorated and re commemorated In so doing it makes a unique contribution to a wide range of historiographical fields British history since the fourteenth century memory studies heritage studies landscape history conflict archaeology and military history

The Battles of St Albans Peter Burley, Michael Elliott, Harvey Watson, 2013-09-09 St Albans is unique in having been the site of two pivotal battles during the Wars of the Roses yet this is the first book length account to have been published It offers a gripping account of the fighting and of the politics and intrigue that led to it and it incorporates the results of the latest research The authors also plot the events of over 500 years ago onto the twenty first century landscape of St Albans so that the visitor can retrace the course of each battle on the present day ground
