

STEP-BY-STEP EXERCISE: STANDING FIGURE

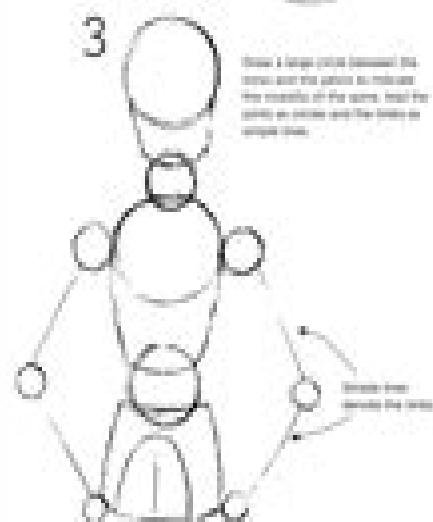

Take your time practicing the basic drawing techniques on these two pages and eventually you'll get the result you want: a solid form upon which to create a finished figure.

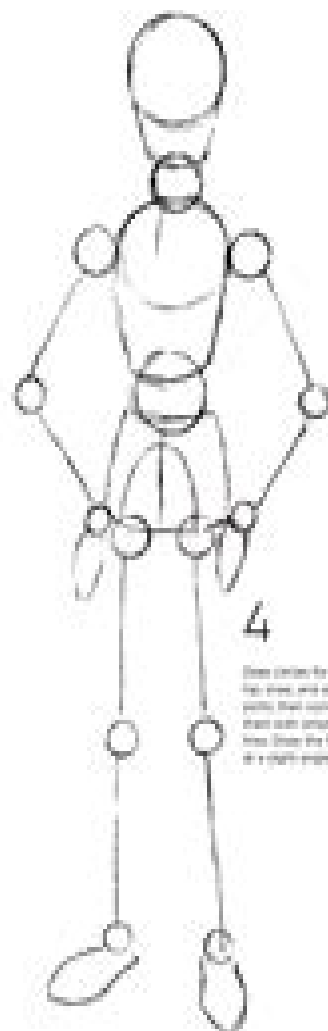

Start with a circle to define the upper part of the body. Add a circle for the neck. Add another circle to the neck on top of the head.

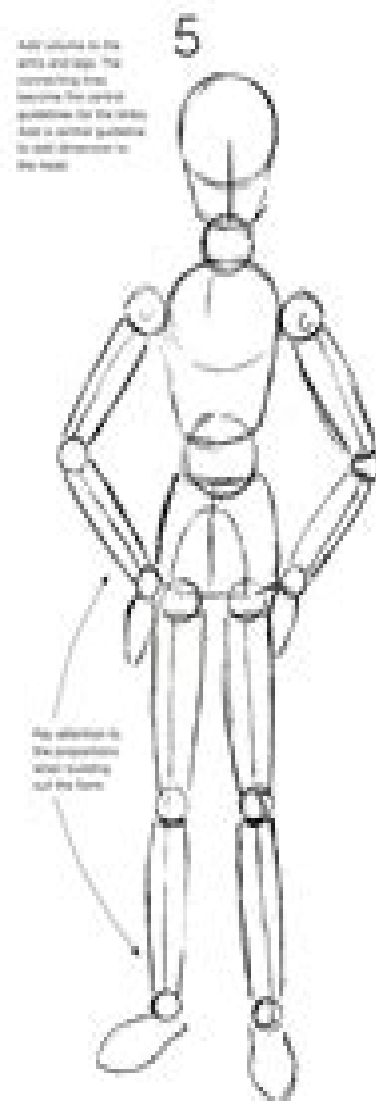

Draw an oval for the upper body. Add a circle for the head. The head and neck are simple shapes.

Draw a large circle around the torso and the neck to indicate the middle of the body. Add the arms as simple shapes. The legs are simple shapes.

Draw circles for the hip, knee, and ankle joints. Add simple shapes for the feet. Add a circle for the foot in a chair pose.

Add volume to the arms and legs. The connecting line becomes the central guideline for the torso. Add a central guideline to add dimension to the head.

Pay attention to the proportions when building out the form.

Continue to build out the form with basic shapes. Remember a soft pencil.

Two circles define the head shape.

The lower torso defines the standing posture.

The central guideline and circle define the feet in perspective.
