THE FRAMEWORK OF THE HUMAN BODY

Read the text below and then answer the questions.

The skeletal system, or skeleton, is made of bones, cartilage, ligaments, and ligaments. It is the framework of the human body. Its main function is to support the body and protect the internal organs. It also provides a point of attachment for muscles, which allow movement. The skeletal system is a dynamic and continuously changing structure that adapts to the needs of the body.

Bones, the fundamental building blocks of the skeletal system, are made of living tissue and are constantly being replaced. They are made of a hard, mineralized substance called hydroxyapatite. The main function of bones is to support the body and protect the internal organs. They also provide a point of attachment for muscles, which allow movement.

Cartilage is a flexible, non-mineralized connective tissue that is found in the joints of the skeletal system. It allows the bones to move against each other without friction. It also provides a point of attachment for ligaments, which connect the bones to each other. Cartilage is made of a soft, fibrous substance called chondroitin.

Ligaments are strong, fibrous bands of connective tissue that connect the bones to each other. They provide stability to the joints and prevent dislocation. They are made of a tough, fibrous substance called collagen.

The skeletal system is not a static structure but rather a dynamic and adaptive one. It constantly changes and adapts to the needs of the body. It is made of living tissue and is constantly being replaced. It also provides a point of attachment for muscles, which allow movement.
