Handbook of Comparative World Steel Standards ,2004 Chapter 15 : Steel Forgings for the Fittings Industry ,2005
THE ASTM INTERNATIONAL STEEL FORGING STANDARDS for the fittings industry are all in dual format so that forgings can be ordered to the customary English inch pound units or to SI units It should be noted that the size and weight of flanges valves and fittings for piping applications vary widely a small threaded pipe coupling might weigh a few ounces grams while a valve body with integral flanges would weigh considerably more The bulk of the standard pipe fittings probably rarely exceeds 1000 lb 454 kg in weight and even the very large special pipe fittings shown in Fig 2 13 did not exceed 2 tons 1 8 t but these were produced to a pressure vessel forging specification The fittings specifications were written to cover the manufacture of relatively small standard parts such as flanges elbows tees couplings and valve bodies with maximum cross section sizes probably not exceeding 4 inches 100 mm The testing provisions were written to take these limitations into account and lend due economy to their production It is this economy that opens some of these specifications to misapplication Standard Specification for Carbon Steel Forgings for General Industrial Use ,1967 Metallurgical Properties of American Society for Testing and Materials A 508 Class 2 Low Alloy Steel Forgings Marcus N.
