Exploring the future landscape of new food sources and production systems Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations,Mukherjee, K.; Trieb, J.; Niegowska Conforti, M.; Di Martino, M.; Fattori, V.; Lipp, M.,2025-04-17 Agrifood systems are undergoing significant changes driven by technological advances scientific discoveries and the need to become more sustainable and resilient In response new food sources and production systems NFPS are emerging worldwide with the potential to alter the global food landscape over the next 5 to 25 years The FAO Food Safety Foresight Programme conducted a multi phase foresight exercise to explore potential food safety implications of emerging new food sources and production systems Through expert consultations and a structured methodology combining a two part Delphi survey and mind mapping the exercise identified 44 emerging innovations across nine clusters expected to develop between now and 2050 The exercise revealed both opportunities and challenges associated with the innovations highlighting the need for proactive preparation by food safety authorities and other stakeholders to ensure the safe development and implementation of these innovations while protecting public health Several steps were identified as necessary to achieving this improving communication on the safety implications of NFPS fostering technical advancement for safety assurance developing tailored safety assessments encouraging collaboration between regulators and industry and harmonizing regulatory requirements while maintaining safety standards The findings also highlighted various social technological economic environmental and political issues that must be addressed for the safe integration of these innovations into food systems Continuous monitoring and assessment of emerging NFPS issues is crucial to better understand the long term implications for food safety and public health

Renewables in Future Power Systems Fabian Wagner,2014-03-21 The book examines the future deployment of renewable power from a normative point of view It identifies properties characterizing the cost optimal transition towards a renewable power system and analyzes the key drivers behind this transition Among those drivers particular attention is paid to technological cost reductions and the implications of uncertainty From a methodological perspective the main contributions of this book relate to the field of endogenous learning and uncertainty in optimizing energy system models The primary objective here is closing the gap between the strand of literature covering renewable potential analyses on the one side and energy system modeling with endogenous technological change on the other side The models applied in this book demonstrate that fundamental changes must occur to transform today's power sector into a more sustainable one over the course of this century Apart from its methodological contributions this work is also intended to provide practically relevant insights regarding the long term competitiveness of renewable power generation

Future Maritime Surveillance Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Defence Committee, 2012-09-19 The Committee has serious concerns following the decision in the 2010 Strategic Defence and Security Review SDSR to cancel the Nimrod MRA4 maritime patrol aircraft MPA programme Although the MoD's own capability investigations have concluded that a MPA is the solution to the UK's maritime surveillance requirements over the next 20 years the MoD has postponed any decision on a further MPA until at least the next SDSR in 2015 The MoD has acknowledged that the resultant capability gap cannot be completely covered by an existing single asset or collection of assets The Committee is concerned that the MoD is sending mixed messages in respect of the need for a maritime patrol aircraft On one hand it says that there is no requirement for such an aircraft and that it is not funded or in the programme but on the other hand it acknowledges that its absence is a risk and something may need to be done The Committee is also concerned about the withdrawal of other maritime surveillance assets However the report acknowledges the work the MoD has undertaken to explore the potential options for maritime surveillance in the longer term such as unmanned systems lighter than air vehicles and space technology The report welcomes the establishment of the Maritime Security Oversight Group and the National Maritime Information Centre as first steps towards a more strategic and co-ordinated output and as a way of mitigating some of the capability gaps

Developmental Theories Of Crime And Delinquency Terence P. Thornberry, In Developmental Theories of Crime and Delinquency Terence P Thornberry and his contributors show that criminal behavior is not a static human attribute but ebbs and flows over the life course of the individual Criminal behavior tends to follow a distinct psychological pattern It is relatively uncommon during childhood is initiated by most offenders during adolescence flourishes during late adolescence and early adulthood and usually diminishes or disappears by the mid twenties This pattern is not characteristic of all people some never commit crimes and others become career criminals but it is a general description of the developmental pattern of criminal offenders This pattern has profound implications for theories of crime and delinquency Not only does it explain initiation into maintenance of and desistance from involvement in crime it offers insight into why crime flourishes during adolescence Traditional theories of crime and delinquency have often failed to distinguish among different phases of criminal careers They tend to ignore developmental changes that occur across a person's life course changes that coincide with and can explain the causes and patterns of criminal behavior This paperback edition of the seventh volume of the distinguished series Advances in Criminological Theory moves us from static identifications of the criminal by presenting a broad range of developmental explanations of crime Each contributor articulates a developmental or life course perspective in explaining how people become involved in delinquency and crime Each covers a wide range of theoretical territory and reveals how a developmental perspective enhances the explanatory power of traditional theories of crime and delinquency This volume is an invaluable tool for criminologists sociologists psychologists and other professionals seeking to teach how crime and violence can be understood in our culture
