

The illustration is a colorful, stylized representation of the history of astronomy. On the left, a historical astronomer with a beard, wearing a green cap and a red robe with a white collar, holds a long telescope. He stands next to a small table with a celestial globe. In the center, a large yellow crescent moon is depicted with two human profiles facing each other, their faces forming the curve of the moon. To the right, a green rocket with two boosters is shown launching upwards, leaving a large, bright yellow and orange flame trail. The background is a dark blue night sky filled with numerous stars of various colors and sizes. A large, bright orange sun is partially visible on the right side. The entire scene is framed by a thin orange border.
