Stewardship Across Boundaries:

Stewardship Across Boundaries Richard L. Knight, Peter Landres, 2013-06-17 Every piece of land no matter how remote or untrammeled has a boundary. While sometimes boundary lines follow topographic or biological features, more often they follow the straight lines of political dictate and compromise. Administrative boundaries nearly always fragment a landscape, resulting in loss of species that must disperse or migrate across borders, increased likelihood of threats such as alien species or pollutants, and disruption of natural processes such as fire. Despite the importance and ubiquity of boundary issues, remarkably little has been written on the subject. Stewardship Across Boundaries fills that gap in the literature, addressing the complex biological and socioeconomic impacts of both public and private land boundaries in the United States. With contributions from natural resource managers, historians, environmentalists, political scientists, and legal scholars, the book develops a framework for understanding administrative boundaries and their effects on the land and on human behavior; examines issues related to different types of boundaries: wilderness, commodity, recreation, private, public; presents a series of case studies illustrating the efforts of those who have cooperated to promote stewardship across boundaries; synthesizes the broad complexity of boundary-related issues and offers an integrated strategy for achieving regional stewardship. Stewardship Across Boundaries should spur open discussion among students, scientists, managers, and activists on this important topic. It demonstrates how legal, social, and ecological conditions interact in causing boundary impacts and why those factors must be integrated to improve land management. It also discusses research needs and will help facilitate critical thinking within the scientific community that could result in new strategies for managing boundaries and their impacts. Wilderness Science

Principles to Land Management Virginia H. Dale, Richard A. Haeuber, 2011-06-27 This volume applies ecological principles and guidelines to understand past and current land use and land management and more importantly endeavors to promote more ecologically sound approaches to future land use and management decisions. The volume incorporates case studies from a wide variety of disciplines and perspectives. The case studies explore past and current land use decisions on both public and private lands and include practical approaches and tools for land use decision making. Perhaps the most important feature of the book is the linking of ecological theory and principle with applied land use decision making: the theoretical and empirical are joined through concrete case studies of actual land use decision making processes. In this volume, readers will find a statement of fundamental ecological principles that are relevant for land use planning and management, coupled with multiple in-depth explorations of the application of these principles in action. In addition, most case studies describe specific tools and approaches for incorporating endeavors to join fundamental ecological knowledge with cutting edge application in order to both educate and provide concrete guidance for decision making The intended audience is broad and multidisciplinary from undergraduate and graduate level courses in environmental studies to professional land use planners

Taylor, 2002-08 The rapidly increasing global population has dramatically increased the demands for natural resources and has caused significant changes in quantity and quality of natural resources To achieve sustainable resource management it is essential to obtain insightful guidance from emerging disciplines such as landscape ecology This text addresses the links between landscape ecology and natural resource management These links are discussed in the context of various landscape types a diverse set of resources and a wide range of management issues A large number of landscape ecology concepts principles and methods are introduced Critical reviews of past management practices and a number of case studies are presented This text provides many guidelines for managing natural resources from a landscape perspective and offers useful suggestions for landscape ecologists to carry out research relevant to natural resource management In addition it will be an ideal supplemental text for graduate and advanced undergraduate ecology courses Wilderness Science in a Time of Change Conference ,2000

Forest Biodiversity in the Pacific Northwest Susan Charnley, 2008 This paper synthesizes the existing literature about traditional and local ecological knowledge relating to biodiversity in Pacific Northwest forests in order to assess what is needed to apply this knowledge to forest biodiversity conservation efforts We address four topics 1 views and values people have relating to biodiversity 2 the resource use and management practices of local forest users and their effects on biodiversity 3 methods and models for integrating traditional and local ecological knowledge into biodiversity conservation on public and private lands and 4 challenges to applying traditional and local ecological knowledge for biodiversity conservation We focus on the ecological knowledge of three groups who inhabit the region American Indians family forest owners and commercial nontimber forest product NTFP harvesters Integrating traditional and local ecological knowledge into forest biodiversity conservation is most likely to be successful if the knowledge holders are directly engaged with forest managers and western scientists in on the ground projects in which interaction and knowledge sharing occur Three things important to the success of such efforts are understanding the communication styles of knowledge holders establishing a foundation of trust to work from and identifying mutual benefits from knowledge sharing that create an incentive to collaborate for biodiversity conservation Although several promising models exist for how to integrate traditional and local ecological knowledge into forest management a number of social economic and policy constraints have prevented this knowledge from flourishing and being applied These constraints should be addressed alongside any strategy for knowledge integration

Traditional and Local Ecological Knowledge about Forest Biodiversity in the Pacific Northwest Susan Chamley, 2010-10 Synthesizes the existing literature about traditional and local ecological knowledge relating to biodiversity BD in Pacific NW forests in order to assess what is needed to apply this knowledge to forest BD conservation efforts Four topics are addressed 1 views and values people have relating to BD 2 the resource use and mgmt practices of local forest users and their effects on BD 3 methods and models for integrating traditional and local ecological knowledge into BD conservation and 4 challenges to applying traditional and local ecological knowledge for BD conservation Focuses on the ecological knowledge of three groups who inhabit the region Native Amer family forest owners and commercial nontimber forest product harvesters

Making and Moving Knowledge John Sutton Lutz, Barbara Neis, 2008-07-09 It has been clear for some time that research does not automatically translate into knowledge nor does knowledge necessarily translate into wisdom Whether the immediate challenge is global warming epidemic disease poverty environmental degradation or social fragmentation research efforts are wasted if we cannot devise efficient and understandable processes to create and transfer knowledge to policy makers interested groups and communities How to maximize the impact of scholarly research and combine it with practical knowledge already available in lay communities are key issues in a world threatened with social ecological disasters Making and Moving Knowledge focuses directly on how knowledge is created and transferred or is blocked and atrophies It places knowledge generated by universities and governments beside practical knowledge from coastal aboriginal and non aboriginal communities and looks at how different kinds of knowledge flow in different directions Concentrating on intellectually fertile spaces at the edges of disciplines and the rich socio ecological interfaces where land meets sea authors demonstrate their commitment to knowledge transfer in their work showing how knowledge transfer can be considered theoretically methodologically and practically

The Mystery of Capital and the Construction of Social Reality Barry Smith, David Mark, Isaac Ehrlich, 2015-11-05 John Searle's The Construction of Social Reality and Hernando de Soto's The Mystery of Capital shifted the focus of current thought on capital and economic development to the cultural and conceptual ideas that underpin market economies and that are taken for granted in developed nations This collection of essays assembles 21 philosophers economists and political scientists to help readers understand these exciting new theories

Stitching the West Back Together Susan Charnley, Thomas E. Sheridan, Gary P. Nabhan, 2014-09-10 As conservationists ranchers and forest workers join together to protect the wide open spaces diverse habitats and working landscapes upon which people plants and animals depend a new vision of management is emerging in which the conservation of biodiversity ecosystem integrity and sustainable resource use are seen not as antithetical but as compatible even symbiotic goals This book explores that expanded inclusive vision of environmentalism as it delves into the history and evolution of Western land use policy and of the working landscapes themselves      Getting Results Through Collaboration Myrna Mandell, 2001-08-30 Public policy makers and managers in public administration operate under a unique set of circumstances that differ significantly from those in the private sector Collaboration through networks is a feature of both sectors but in the private sector it is often characterized by partnerships and alliances meant to benefit a particular company or industry whereas collaboration through networks in the public sector involve disparate organizations working toward a common goal and not merely to enhance the performance of one among them Therefore much of the work that has been published in the business management literature on collaboration through networks does not apply wholesale without revisions to the public sector Mandell and her contributors fill that gap by bringing together academic and practitioner perspectives into a coherent holistic examination of the operative processes in public sector networks and network structures Networks and network structures by definition imply interactions among many organizations individuals or interest groups The definition is broadened here to include collaborative efforts that take place within different countries as well as those that cross national borders Going beyond the usual emphasis on the opportunities and promises of collaboration through networks Mandell and her contributors take a hard look at such pitfalls and constraints as those involving power conflicts between individual and organizational commitments the dichotomy between the need for flexibility and the need for rules and procedures the difference between the needs and expectations of a national public and a local public and accountability issues that arise from the need to satisfy outside regulators as well as the goals of the network In addition to these unique contributions to the literature on networks and network structures Mandell addresses the important but often overlooked behavioral micro issues e g motivation change and communication that tend to be drowned out by the overriding emphasis in the literature on structural macro issues Reflects the latest thinking in the field and explores up to the minute innovations currently being developed      Ecoregion-Based Design for Sustainability Robert G. Bailey, 2007-05-08 Robert Bailey is an established authority on ecosystems and his previous works Ecosystem Geography and Ecoregions have sold well Fully illustrated with color diagrams and maps Includes a Glossary to define terms which may be unfamiliar to professionals working in this cross disciplinary field Provides a Resource Guide and a Sources and Recommended Reading section to aid readers who require additional information Presents a modified approach to land management and conservation in a non technical and engaging manner      Greater Yellowstone Public Lands Alice Wondrak Biel, 2006      The Governance of Western Public Lands Martin A. Nie, 2008 Examines the conflict surrounding public land management revealing how problematic language in public land laws scarcity of resources and mistrust cloud the debates and offering a range of solutions to help move beyond the dysfunctional status quo management
