Teaching African American History:

Teaching African-American History Robert L. Harris, 2001 Teaching Black History to White People Leonard N. Moore, 2021-09-14 Leonard Moore has been teaching Black history for twenty five years mostly to white people Drawing on decades of experience in the classroom and on college campuses throughout the South as well as on his own personal history Moore illustrates how an understanding of Black history is necessary for everyone With Teaching Black History to White People which is part memoir part Black history part pedagogy and part how to guide Moore delivers an accessible and engaging primer on the Black experience in America He poses provocative questions such as Why is the teaching of Black history so controversial and What came first slavery or racism These questions don t have easy answers and Moore insists that embracing discomfort is necessary for engaging in open and honest conversations about race Moore includes a syllabus and other tools for actionable steps that white people can take to move beyond performative justice and toward racial reparations healing and reconciliation

Teaching African and African American History In the Home, School, and Community Dr. Eva M. Doyle, 2023-11-13 The book My Journey of 45 Years Teaching African American History in the Home School and Community traces the author s life as an Educator Historian and Community Activist with the goal of sharing little known facts about the contributions of African Americans to our nation and the world Much of this history has been excluded from many textbooks The readers will find this book to be biographical informative and historical The places events community projects and people featured here have contributed to a life long journey of research and writing It is the hope of this writer that this book will be used not only as a resource to learn more about the contributions of African Americans but as an incentive for readers to share their talents knowledge and creativity to make a difference in the world This is the 13th book in the Eye on History Series of publications designed to educate and inform readers on a variety of topics For more information go to www.evamdoyle.com

Reading, Interpreting, and Teaching African American History LaGarrett Jarriel King, 2012 African American history and how it is taught in classroom spaces have been a point of contention with activists historians and educators for decades In it current form African American history narratives often are ambiguous and truncated leaving students with a disjointed construction about U S history Additionally the pedagogical decisions made by teachers regarding African American history are sometimes problematic To fix this problem critical scholars have surmised that both pre and in service teachers need to be more knowledgeable about African American history This knowledge will help teachers move past simplistic constructions of the past and provide a transformative educational experience In essence these scholars believe that teachers cannot teach African American history because they do not know it This study however examines what if they do know African American history will they teach it The purpose of this study was to investigate how knowledge influences teachers pedagogical decisions Using the theoretical and conceptual frameworks of cultural memory and knowledge construction this qualitative case study explores how four pre service teachers interpreted African American history after engaging in a summer reading program and how that knowledge was implemented in their classroom during their student teaching semester The reader entitled A Winding River was a collection of scholarly journal articles book chapters and primary and secondary source documents Data collection measures included three classroom observations reflective journals three interviews and other classroom documents related to the participant s student teaching experience Findings indicate that knowledge acquisition is complex and the process to teach is a generative process Although knowledge is an important component in teaching sociocultural factors also influenced the divergent ways African American history was interpreted and taught The study indicates that the access of African American history is not always a prerequisite in teaching the subject in transformative ways

African American History Reconsidered Pero Gaglo Dagbovie,2010 This volume establishes new perspectives on African American history The author discusses a wide range of issues and themes for understanding and analyzing African American history the 20th century African American historical enterprise and the teaching of African American history for the 21st century

Teaching African American History as a Component of Multiethnic Education Through Colonial Williamsburg Brian L. Johnson,1991

Hearing their Voices Kay Traill,2019-12-25 This book is about what teachers need to know before they teach history to students of color It is a book about the inside feel of these students and what they think and say history is for based on research in the United States with reflections on the United Kingdom It gives history teachers a better understanding of why culturally relevant pedagogy inclusion and issues surrounding diversity are of crucial importance if we are to reach these students We live in a world where many multicultural students think they have little connection with the histories traditions and values in which they have grown up some look toward groups who promise them a sense of belonging and ownership of created histories which clash with and threaten democratic societies This book begins with the belief that it is important to understand how a subject history makes non White students think and feel about themselves At its center are assertions made by students of color who think learning history that is rich in aspects they can connect with culturally and personally is important and necessary in gaining and holding their attention Then I make suggestions of how we best communicate and set high expectations for these students how as history teachers we use strategies to better engage these students and redirect the unengaged We need to make sure history educators provide necessary and appropriate scaffolding for students of colour to better process what they learn in history lessons making sure they are engaged in higher order thinking in an equitable safe environment where they see and know that their diversities are respected and valued

Teaching African-American History at Colonial Williamsburg Rex Ellis, 1989 Discusses the development of the teaching of 18th century African American history in the context of Colonial Williamsburg
