findings based on the latest data available refute earlier expectations that a decrease in population necessarily leads to a decline in the local business community

The Farm Financial Crisis Steve H Murdock, F. Larry Leistritz, F Larry Leistritz, 2019-06-04 After nearly a decade of prosperity rural America entered the 1980s with its agricultural base facing a severe financial crisis Land values export markets and the general demand for agricultural commodities were declining while the levels of indebtedness reached during the 1970s were becoming increasingly difficult to manage By the middle of the 1980s the existence of a crisis was apparent in farm failure rates that had reached levels that had not occurred since the 1930s and in the fact that large numbers of agricultural banks were failing and agencies that provide loans to farmers and ranchers were experiencing unprecedented losses Small towns in agriculturally dependent rural areas were losing businesses populations and related services and extremely high rates of socioemotional problems were noted among rural residents in agriculturally dependent areas of the nation

Rural Public Services Richard E Lonsdale, Gyorgy Enyedi, 2019-08-16 Interest in the special problems of rural areas and concern with rural development in general have increased substantially throughout much of the world in the years since about 1960 Attesting to this has been the dramatic increase in attention to rural problems in the scholarly and popular literature and by government agencies At first the dominant focus was on development projects and the creation of new jobs It was not long however until other related issues came to the fore in particular the availability and quality of public services essential to achieve economic growth and improvement and having a direct bearing on the well being of rural peoples Most nations of the world have developed plans and launched projects to improve rural public services and narrow urban rural differentials in their provision As one would expect there have been great differences between nations in the severity of problems foci of attention program strategies and their general effectiveness and degree of commitment and effort Given this diversity it seems appropriate to examine and compare rural service problems and efforts to ameliorate them in a sample of contrasting societies Implicit is the conviction that 1 all nations can learn at least something from the experiences of others and 2 by taking an international comparative view of the subject certain generalizations can be established

The Social Consequences And Challenges Of New Agricultural Technologies Gigi M Berardi, Charles C Geisler, 2019-07-11 Although formal social impact assessment of changing technologies in U S agriculture is still in its infancy scholars have been documenting the effects of new technology throughout the twentieth century In this collection Professors Berardi and Geisler bring together historically relevant research and a carefully chosen cross section of contemporary work Their review of the literature is followed by an evaluation of the effects of mechanization on labor and production written in 1904 which provides a backdrop for papers from the 1940s and 1950s examining the mechanization of agriculture in the South in the Midwest and in rural areas in general Subsequent chapters offer present day insights on such topics as the socioeconomic consequences of automated vegetable and tobacco harvesting center pivot irrigation and organic and no till cultivation The authors also look at compensation and adjustment programs for displaced labor the relationship between technology and agribusiness growth and the effectiveness of university programs that prepare students to perform social impact assessments in agriculture The edited proceedings of a spirited roundtable discussion on new directions for the study of the social impacts of farm technology and the political economy of agriculture provide the thought provoking conclusion to this overview of the field

Small Farms Alessandro Bonanno, 2019-07-11 Why do small farms continue to coexist with ever larger farming operations in advanced Western societies Through a thorough case study of Italy and a comparative analysis of small farms in the United States Dr Bonanno seeks to answer this question exploring the complex relationships among farm family members ideology and behavior the small farm economic sector and the interaction of small farms within the relevant spheres of society He finds that at the structural level a lack of occupational alternatives and contradictions within both labor and land markets often force farmers to retain marginal farms despite personal dissatisfaction At the ideological level many farm families display deep attachment to the agrarian way of life and cite this as a fundamental reason for not leaving the farm for other work Dr Bonanno also analyzes the role of small farms within the social system and concludes that they serve a legitimative function This legitimative role fosters contradictions within the social and economic systems that the state is unable to resolve thus contributing to the continuation of a dual structure in agricultural development large and very large farms at one end of the scale and marginal but persistent small farms at the other Towards A New Political Economy Of Agriculture William H Friedland, 2021-11-28 The emergence of a truly global economy in the 1970s and the need to understand the subsequent changes in economic structure provided the impetus for this synthesis of the sociology of agriculture The book offers the first formulations of a political economy theory that explains the transnational social and production relations of food and agriculture Drawing upon studies of labour technology the state and gender the contributors put forward a basis for reassessing and restating the intellectual framework of agriculture
