Technology and the Character of Contemporary Life Albert Borgmann, 2024-05-31 Blending social analysis and philosophy Albert Borgmann maintains that technology creates a controlling pattern in our lives This pattern discernible even in such an inconspicuous action as switching on a stereo has global effects it sharply divides life into labor and leisure it sustains the industrial democracies and it fosters the view that the earth itself is a technological device He argues that technology has served us as well in conquering hunger and disease but that when we turn to it for richer experiences it leads instead to a life dominated by effortless and thoughtless consumption Borgmann does not reject technology but calls for public conversation about the nature of the good life He counsels us to make room in a technological age for matters of ultimate concern things and practices that engage us in their own right and Reconfiguring Technoscience traces the genealogy of this controversial concept and discusses its meanings and relevance. A third section, Revisiting Anthropological Categories, focuses on the relationships of technology with the natural and the human worlds from various perspectives that include anthropotechnology, Anthropocene, technological, and vital norms and temporalities. The final section, Innovating in Ethics, Design, and Aesthetics, brings together contributions that draw on various French traditions to afford fresh insights on ethics of technology, philosophy of design, techno-aesthetics, and digital studies. The Ethics of Ordinary Technology Michel Puech, 2016-04-28 Technology is even more than our world, our form of life, our civilization. Technology interacts with the world to change it. Philosophers need to seriously address the fluidity of a smartphone interface, the efficiency of a Dyson vacuum cleaner, or the familiar noise of an antique vacuum cleaner. Beyond their phenomenological description, the emotional experience acquires moral significance and in some cases even supplies ethical resources for the self. If we leave this dimension of modern experience unaddressed, we may miss something of value in contemporary life. Combining European humanism, Anglophone pragmatism, and Asian traditions, Michel Puech pleads for an ethical turn in the way we understand and address technological issues in modern-day society. Puech argues that the question of power is what needs to be reconsidered today. In doing so, he provides a three-tier distinction of power: power to modify the outer world, our first intention; method in any case; technology; power over other humans, our enduring obsession; politics and domination; power over oneself, ethics and wisdom.

Thinking about Technology Gil Germain, 2017-08-04 The world we make reflects the way reality is perceived, and today the world is perceived primarily in technological terms. So argues Gil Germain in Thinking About Technology: How the Technological Mind Misreads Reality. Given the connection between perception and action, or thinking and doing, Germain first highlights the central features of technological worldview to better understand the contemporary drive to master the conditions of human existence. He then boldly proposes that the technological worldview seriously misreads the nature of the world it seeks mastery over and shows how this misinterpretation invariably leads to the technologically related challenges currently vexing the contemporary social order: from the drift toward a posthuman future to the anti-globalization backlash. Germain closes Thinking About Technology by articulating an alternative worldview to the technological perspective and illustrating how this re-reading of reality might help us inhabit the technological landscape in ways better attuned to the human condition.

Technology and the Good Life? Eric Higgs, Andrew Light, David Strong, 2010-12-15 Can we use technology in the pursuit of a good life, or are we doomed to having our lives organized and our priorities set by the demands of machines and systems? How can philosophy help us to make technology a servant rather than a master? Technology and the Good Life uses a careful collective analysis of Albert Borgmann's controversial and influential ideas as a jumping-off point from which to address questions such as these about the role and significance of technology in our lives. Contributors, both sympathetic and critical examine Borgmann's work especially his device paradigm apply his theories to new areas such as film agriculture design and ecological restoration and consider the place of his thought within philosophy and technology studies more generally Because this collection carefully investigates the issues at the heart of how we can take charge of life with technology it will be a landmark work not just for philosophers of technology but for students and scholars in the many disciplines concerned with science and technology studies

BOOK JACKET      Technology and Place Steven A. Moore, 2011-01-20 Developing sustainable architectural and agricultural technologies was the intent behind Blueprint Farm an experimental agricultural project designed to benefit farm workers displaced by the industrialization of agriculture in the Rio Grande Valley of Texas Yet despite its promise the very institutions that created Blueprint Farm terminated the project after just four years 1987 1991 In this book Steven Moore demonstrates how the various stakeholders competing definitions of sustainability technology and place ultimately doomed Blueprint Farm He reconstructs the conflicting interests and goals of the founders including Jim Hightower and the Texas Department of Agriculture Laredo Junior College and the Center for Maximum Potential Building Systems and shows how ironically they unwittingly suppressed the self determination of the very farm workers the project sought to benefit From the instructive failure of Blueprint Farm Moore extracts eight principles for a regenerative architecture which he calls his nonmodern manifesto

Broad and Narrow Interpretations of Philosophy of Technology P.T. Durbin,2012-12-06 BACKGROUND DEPARTMENTS SPECIALIZATION AND PROFESSIONALIZATION IN AMERICAN HIGHER EDUCATION For over half of its history U S higher education turned out mostly cler gymen and lawyers Looking back on that period we might be tempted to think that this meant specialized training for the ministry or the practice of law That however was not the case What a college education in the U S prepared young men almost exclusively for from the founding of Harvard College in 1636 through the founding of hundreds of denominational colleges in the first two thirds of the nineteenth century was leadership in the community Professionalization and specialization only began to take root and then became the dominant mode in U S higher education in the period roughly from 1860 1920 In subsequent decades that seemed to many critics to signal the end of what might be called education in wisdom the preparation of leaders for a broad range of responsibilities Professionalization specialization and departmentalization of higher education in the U S began in the last quarter of the nineteenth century

Modern Technology and the Human Future Craig M. Gay,2018-12-11 Technology has always shaped human life and our understanding of what it means to be human But does it actually encourage human flourishing By exploring the doctrine of the incarnation and what it means for our embodiment Craig Gay raises concerns about the theological implications of modern technologies and movements such as transhumanism offering an alternative vision to the path of modern technology      Philosophers of Technology Stig Børsen Hansen, 2020-09-07

Technology is increasingly subject of attention from philosophers Philosophical reflection on technology exhibits a wide and at times bewildering array of approaches and modes of thought This volume brings to light the development of three schools in the philosophy of technology Based on thorough introductions to Karl Marx Martin Heidegger s and John Dewey s thought about technology the volume offers an in depth account of the way thinkers in the critical the phenomenological and the pragmatic schools have respond to issues and challenges raised by the works of the founders of these schools Technologies in almost any aspect of human life is potentially subject of philosophical treatment To offer a focused demonstration of key arguments and insights the presentation of each school is concluded with a contribution to discussions of educational technologies In addition to philosophers seeking a valuable and clear structuring of a still burgeoning field the volume is of interest to those working with educational philosophy and value sensitive design Stig B rsen Hansen s book is a must for all interested in understanding the development of the philosophy of technology and the relation of thoughts of thinkers that have shaped the area The author presents a new and refreshing take on the ideas from Marx to Marcuse from Dewey to Latour and Heidegger to Borgmann It will engage and hopefully provoke Dr Jan Kyrre Berg Frieis University of Copenhagen
