The Diffusion of Information and Communication Technologies Ewa Lechman, 2017-09-27 In recent decades the world has witnessed unprecedented in terms of speed and geographic coverage diffusion of new information and communication technologies ICT. The ongoing digital revolution pervasively impacts and reshapes societies and economies and therefore deserves special attention and interest. This book provides extensive evidence on information and communication technologies development patterns and dynamics of this process across developed economies over the period 1980 to the present day. It adopts newly developed methodology to identification of the critical mass and isolation of technological takeoff intervals which are intimately related to the process of technology diffusion. The statistically robust analysis of country specific data demonstrates the key economic, social and institutional prerequisites of ICT diffusion across examined countries indicating what factors significantly foster or reversely hinder the process.

Information Resources and Technology Transfer Management in Developing Countries Richard Onyango, 2018-04-09 Originally published in 1997, this book puts information management in the context of technology transfer, industrialization and national development. As well as showing the necessity for the efficient use of information resources, the book also examines the costs of poor information management in undermining negotiation, the preparation of contingencies and the ability to let go of dead projects. The book includes case studies of two technology transfer projects in Kenya.

Information and Communication Technologies in the Context of Globalization K. Lal, 2007-11-13 This book focuses on the adoption of new technologies led by information and communication technologies by SMEs in developing countries. It identifies several factors that augment competitiveness of firms in the era of globalization. Contrary to the general belief, these factors are not uniform across the developing world. Based on the empirical evidence from firms located in Malaysia, India, Nigeria, Jamaica and Costa Rica, the study concludes that firms cannot remain competitive without institutional support. Since firms operate in different institutional and economic environments, the form of support varies from one country to another.
