Analyses on Health Status and Care Needs among Older Adults Jian Sun,Hongye Luo, Yi Zeng,2025-09-12 Globally a shift in population structures and disease spectrum is inevitable The latest global burden of disease study revealed that the average healthy life expectancy has steadily increased from 1990 to 2019 worldwide However there is a concerning trend in which the growth in healthy life expectancy is lower than the growth in life expectancy in 198 out of 204 countries evaluated This implies that people spend more time in sub optimal health despite living longer Moreover non communicable diseases contribute an increasingly significant portion of the disease burden in low and middle income countries growing from one third to almost two thirds from 1990 to 2019 This mainly results from preventable risk factors It is important to approach aging with a positive outlook This entails guaranteeing sufficient medical care and proactively managing health issues in older adults Importantly since several diseases are often irreversible prevention is key Social and psychological factors due to their nebulous harm have struggled to gain attention over a long period We should aim to make the additional years gained during old age as healthful as those in other life stages Broadcast Spectrum and Television Standards United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation,1996 The End of Television? Elihu Katz,Paddy Scannell,2009-09-17 Is television dead The classic television era of the 1950s and 1960s characterized by limited

choices of programs broadcast on over the air channels to families as if they were seated around a hearth and to a nation as if gathered around a campfire has indeed ended That early stage of sharedness and scarcity gave way to the television of plenty when satellite and cable and competition reigned choice was suddenly expanded and every room in the home had its own television set And now television offers infinite choices where we can view what we like when we like where we like on a variety of screens telephones and Web sites Some researchers assert that television is not dead but has merely moved from a collectivist to an individualist phase Throughout the drastic evolution of this media thousands of studies have examined the short term effects of television such as the evaluation of persuasion campaigns Yet there is scant research on the overreaching sociological impacts of television and its centrality to Western culture over the past 60 years This compelling volume of The ANNALS is the first collection of rigorous articles devoted to studying ways in which television has impacted our values ideologies institutions social structure and culture Focusing on classic television these leading experts in media studies delve into the effects on social institutions namely family and politics and its effects on values and everyday behavior These seminal articles lay the groundwork for innovative studies of the numerous ways that television has impacted democracy social integration nation and family trust and suspiciousness materialism and identity social and physical Students and researchers will find a wealth of inspiration for new research projects It is a must have resource for social scientists interested in media studies

Television for Rural Development B. S. S. Rao, 1992 The Challenge of Affluence Avner Offer, 2006-03-09 Since the 1940s Americans and Britons have experienced rising material abundance but also a range of social and personal disorders including family breakdown obesity and addiction Drawing on the latest cognitive research Avner Offer presents a detailed and reasoned critique of the modern consumer society
