Feeling Things Stephanie Downes, Sally Holloway, Sarah Randles, 2018 This interdisciplinary essay collection investigates the various interactions of people, feelings and things throughout premodern Europe. It focuses on the period before mass production when limited literacy often prioritised material methods of communication. The subject of materiality has been of increasing significance in recent historical inquiry alongside growing emphasis on the relationships between objects, emotions and affect in archaeological and sociological research. The historical intersections between materiality and emotions, however, have remained under-theorised, particularly with respect to artefacts that have continuing resonance over extended periods of time or across cultural and geographical space. Feeling Things addresses the need to develop an appropriate cross-disciplinary theoretical framework for the analysis of objects and emotions in European history, with special attention to the need to track the shifting emotional valencies of objects from the past to the present and from one place and cultural context to another. The collection draws together an international group of historians, art historians, curators and literary scholars working on a variety of cultural, literary, visual and material sources. Objects considered include books, letters, prosthetics, religious relics, shoes, stone and textiles. Many of these have been preserved in international galleries, museums and archives, while others have remained in their original locations even as their contexts have changed over time. The chapters consider the ways in which emotions such as despair, fear, grief, hope, love and wonder become inscribed in and ascribed to these items, producing emotional objects of significance and agency. Such objects can be harnessed to create, affirm or express individual relationships, as for example in religious devotion and practice or in the construction of cultural, communal and national identities.

Falls in Older People Stephen R. Lord, Catherine Sherrington, Hylton B. Menz, 2001 Covering epidemiology, evidence-based risk assessment and falls prevention strategies, this book will be invaluable to all involved with the health care of the elderly.
