Born in Belfast during World War II raised in a working class Protestant family and educated on scholarship at Queen's University writer Stewart Parker's story is in many ways the story of his generation Other aspects of his personal history though such as the amputation of his left leg at age 19 helped to create an extraordinarily perceptive observer and commentator Steeped in American popular culture as a child and young adult he spent five years teaching in the United States before returning to Belfast in August 1969 the same week British troops responded to sectarian disturbances there Parker had developed a sense of writing as a form of political action in the highly charged atmosphere of the US in the late 1960s which he applied in many and varied capacities throughout the worst years of the Troubles to express his own socialist and secular vision of Northern Irish potential As a young aspiring poet and novelist he supported himself with free lance work that brought him into contact with institutions ranging from BBC Northern Ireland to the Irish Times for which he wrote personal columns and the music review feature High Pop and from the Queen's University Extramural Department to Long Kesh internment camp where his creative writing students included Gerry Adams It is as a playwright however that Parker earned a permanent spot in the literary canon with drama that encapsulates his experience of Northern Ireland in the 1970s Marilyn Richter's Stewart Parker A Life illuminates the genesis development and meaning of such classic plays as Spokesong Northern Star and Pentecost works that continue to shed light on the North's past present and future in the context of Parker's life and times Meticulously researched and engagingly written this critical biography rewards general readers and specialists alike
