Rethinking Learning in Early Childhood Education Nicola Yelland, Libby Lee, Maureen O'Rourke, Cathie Harrison, 2008-08-16 I think a real strength of the book is the use of the case studies to ground the points made and to offer in depth insights into practice Jackie Marsh University of Sheffield UK This exciting book considers the nature of young children s lives and how this can and should inform early childhood education in practical ways It examines What is it like for young children to learn in the 21st century How can we link this to new and innovative ways of providing relevant and engaging learning contexts for young children What it means to be multiliterate in the 21st century The book explores how learning and engagement with ideas can be extended through the use of new technologies describing how information and communications technologies enable young people to extend the boundaries of their learning and social interactions These experiences have important implications for formal learning environments and the nature of the curriculum including bold new approaches to teaching and learning which offer opportunities for children to investigate in new ways This book provides examples of the ways in which early childhood teachers have extended opportunities for new types of learning for children by creating contexts in which they are able to explore and represent their ideas and thinking in multimodal formats using new technologies This book represents a research based discussion for rethinking learning in the 21st century and includes various case studies and scenarios to enable students and practising teachers to try out new ideas Finally it considers new ways of thinking about children s learning by creating a multiliteracies portrait pedagogies and pathways profile that enables teachers to build on their strengths to plan for effective learning outcomes Rethinking Learning in Early Childhood Education is key reading for students on Early Years courses or Primary Education pre service teacher education programmes

Play, Learning and the Early Childhood Curriculum Elizabeth Wood, Jane Attfield, 2005-05-17 An excellent overview of the development in thinking about play based on research into different aspects of play This book enables the reader to not only access and engage with developing theories and ideas but also provides practical ideas and examples that have been tried and tested in the classroom This book should be compulsory reading for every teacher of young children who are interested in developing their practice to provide a stimulating active and playful environment with their children in which effective learning and positive attitudes are developed Bernadette Hancock Headteacher of Christ the King Primary School Cardiff One of the major strengths of the book is that it makes some complex theory highly accessible to its audience This makes it an excellent introductory book for use on inservice and undergraduate programs Sue Rogers Institute of Education This book aims to improve the quality of play in educational settings It will be valuable for a wide range of practitioners Nursery World In this new and updated edition of an outstanding book Wood and Attfield once again demonstrate how young children make meaning and construct knowledge through play They combine an informed discussion of the ideological tradition of the early childhood pioneers which continues to underpin most contemporary provision with a refreshing openness to the new insights provided by recent research and the new opportunities offered by the Foundation Stage era Their unrivalled explanation of the links between theorists such as Vygotsky and classroom provision for play is now expanded through considerations of recent findings in neuroscience and a renewed awareness of the sociocultural contexts of childhood as well as by studies which acknowledge the importance of boisterous rough and tumble play activities for children's development. And throughout they remind readers and practitioners of the important distinction between play as a spontaneous activity of children, play as such, and the play which educators offer as a medium for learning.

Elizabeth Brooker, Course Leader MA in Childhood Studies Institute of Education

This book provides a thorough and up to date overview of the topical issue of teaching and learning through play. Chapters cover issues including assessment through play, the role of adults in children's play, the impact of play on social and emotional learning and how to develop a whole school approach to learning through play. This book is theoretical and detailed but extremely interesting and there is certainly practical information to be found in it.

Early Talk: This timely Second Edition explores recent developments which strongly endorse play as an integral part of the curriculum. The content has been fully revised to reflect contemporary thinking about the role and value of play in early childhood and beyond. A key focus is the provision of a secure theoretical and practical grounding for developing a pedagogy of play. In the first section the authors provide an overview of recent developments in education policies and reviews of research into different aspects of play. In the second section the emphasis is on classroom practice, specifically organizing and developing play with particular reference to the Foundation Stage and Key Stage 1, establishing progression and continuity with Key Stage 1, assessing children's learning through play, the role of adults in children's play, using the plan-do-review approach to integrate child-initiated and adult-directed play, the importance of socio-dramatic play for children's social and emotional learning and developing a whole school play ethos. This book enables practitioners to create unity between play, learning and teaching and to improve the quality of children's learning.

New material provided by practitioners has been added to show how this unity can be successfully achieved. This is an essential text for students of education. It is highly recommended to those undertaking degrees in Childhood Studies and those on Initial Teacher Training programmes in early years and primary education.
