Teaching As A Moral Craft By Tom Alan R:

The Teacher as Expert Robert Welker, 1992-01-01 At a time of increasing pressure for teachers to become more professional and more technically competent this book examines in a critical fashion whether teachers should be considered experts Written in straightforward and accessible prose Welker examines the concept of expertise through the ideas of notable educational thinkers in the twentieth century beginning with E P Cubberley and George S Counts and concluding with a chapter on critical theory and the ideas of Maxine Greene and Henry Giroux Other chapters examine such thinkers as Willard Waller Daniel Lortie Alan Tom Philip Jackson and Ivan Illich Each chapter establishes an historical and ideological context and evaluates how the social character of the expert matches the responsibilities While the idea of the teacher assuming the role of educational expert is gaining increased credibility in the current reform movement this book shows that the concept fails to describe the senses of moral and social competence required of the teacher Also the notion of the expert teacher might stand in the way of teachers forming the type of public partnerships necessary for them to complete their tasks adequately

How to Succeed in School Without Really Learning David F. Labaree, 1997-01-01 David Labaree claims that by thinking of education primarily as the route to individual advancement we are defining it as a private good a means of gaining a competitive advantage over other people He endorses an alternative vision one that defines education as a public good providing society with benefits that can be collectively shared for example by producing citizens who are politically responsible and workers who are economically productive

The Trouble with Ed Schools David F. Labaree, 2008-10-01 American schools of education get little respect They are portrayed as intellectual wastelands as impractical and irrelevant as the root cause of bad teaching and inadequate learning In this book a sociologist and historian of education examines the historical developments and contemporary factors that have resulted in the unenviable status of ed schools offering valuable insights into the problems of these beleaguered institutions David F Labaree explains how the poor reputation of the ed school has had important repercussions shaping the quality of its programs its recruitment and the public response to the knowledge it offers He notes the special problems faced by ed schools as they prepare teachers and produce research and researchers And he looks at the consequences of the ed school's attachment to educational progressivism Throughout these discussions Labaree maintains an ambivalent position about education schools admiring their dedication and critiquing their mediocrity their romantic rhetoric and their compliant attitudes
