Technology and Markets for Knowledge Bernard Guilhon, 2001
Reconciles two terms that the economic tradition opposes the market and knowledge The editor and contributors focus on the transformations that affect the processes of creation accumulation and exchange of scientific technological and commercial knowledge by organizations
Industrial Organisation of High-Technology Markets Stefano Comino, Fabio Mara Manenti, 2014-02-28
This text rigorously blends theory with real world applications to study the industrial organisation of the ICT sector Each of the self contained chapters which can be studied in isolation contains theoretical models that are presented in a clear an
Technology Market Transactions Frank Tietze, 2012-01-01
This study of technology auctions is long overdue The book provides a better understanding of intermediaries and their role and impact in markets for technology Both scholars and managers will find it insightful Alfonso Gambardella Bocconi University Italy From this book managers academics and innovation policy makers will all benefit from new insights into the complex relationships between external technology exploitation strategies patents technology trade and open innovation processes The convincing evidence drawn from a dataset of technology auctions helps firms to understand which of their patents are suitable for auction and also provides guidance to intermediaries to help improve the auction models The data presented in this book contributes to further price transparency on technology markets and hence to their further development Hugo Tschirky ETH Zurich Switzerland Within the open innovation paradigm firms need to operate efficiently in markets for technology This book presents original research on technology transactions market intermediaries and specifically the role of auctions as a novel transaction model for patented technologies Frank Tietze delivers an in depth discussion of the impact of empirical results upon transaction cost theory and in so doing provides the means for better understanding technology transaction processes in general and auctions in particular Substantiating transaction cost theory with empirical auction data the author goes on to explore how governance structures need to be designed for effective distributed innovation processes He concludes that the auction mechanism is a viable transaction model and illustrates that the auction design as currently operated by market intermediaries requires thorough adjustments Various options for possible improvements are subsequently prescribed The theoretical facets of this book will strongly appeal to business economists whilst its practical implications will provide an illuminating read for both academics and practitioners in the fields of innovation and intellectual property. Revealing empirically substantiated technology prices, this book will also prove to be of great interest to policy makers for further developing the markets for technology.

Globalisation of R&D and Technology Markets Frieder Meyer-Krahmer, 2012-12-06 On the threshold of the 21st century an intensive debate about globalisation of R D and technology markets is of crucial importance. Globalisation will carry on changing the framework for company strategies and subsequently for public policies. These conference proceedings contain the papers presented at the international conference Globalisation of R D and Technology Markets: Consequences for National Innovation Policies which was organised by the BMBF and FhG ISI. In the first part following the introduction the policy perspectives are formulated. In the second part the trends, issues and policy implications of the technological globalisation are presented. The third part focusses on international R D strategies and the promotion of competence centres from the viewpoint of enterprises.

Technology at the Margins Suresh Chutani, 2011 Remain competitive by offering more accessible, affordable and relevant information technologies that meet mass market needs. Technology at the Margins demonstrates that by making IT more accessible, affordable and relevant, new mass markets can be opened. Based on solid insights generated in key areas of health, education, finance and the environment, the book offers practical recommendations and insights from world leaders, innovators, practitioners and new users of emergent technologies. Offers recommendations on how companies can ensure their own competitiveness by offering more accessible, affordable and relevant information technologies to support mass market needs. Suggests practical recommendations and insights from world leaders, innovators, practitioners and new users of emergent technologies. Challenges businesses to rethink their uses of existing technologies. Technology at the Margins will be of interest to decision makers in the private, public and nonprofit sectors who are interested in opportunities offered by IT in meeting the needs of those at the base of the world's economic pyramid. Technen: Elements of Recent History of Information Technologies with Epistemological Conclusions Andrzej Piotr Wierzbicki, 2014-07-25 The book expresses the conviction that the art of creating tools (Greek techné) changes its character together with the change of civilization epochs and co-determines such changes. This does not mean that tools typical for a civilization epoch determine it completely, but they change our way of perceiving and interpreting the world. There might have been many such epochs in the history of human civilization, much more than the three waves of agricultural, industrial and information civilization. This is expressed by the title Technen of the book, where n denotes a subsequent civilization epoch. During last fifty years we observed a decomposition of the old episteme understood as a way of creating and interpreting knowledge characteristic for a given civilization epoch of modernism, which was an episteme typical for industrial civilization. Today the world is differently understood by the representatives of three different cultural spheres: of strict and natural sciences, of human and social sciences, especially by their part inclined towards postmodernism and technical sciences that have a different episteme than even that of strict and natural sciences Thus we observe today not two cultures but three different episteme The book consists of four parts First contains basic epistemological observations second is devoted to selected elements of recent history of information technologies third contains more detailed epistemological and general discussions fourth specifies conclusions The book is written from the cognitive perspective of technical sciences with a full awareness and discussion of its differences from the cognitive perspective of strict sciences or human and social sciences The main thesis of the book is that informational revolution will probably lead to a formation of a new episteme The book includes discussions of many issues related to such general perspective such as what is technology proper what is intuition from a perspective of technology and of evolutionary naturalism what are the reasons for and how large are the delays between a fundamental invention and its broad social utilization what is the fundamental logical error using paradoxes that are not real only apparent of the tradition of sceptical philosophy what are rational foundations and examples of emergence of order out of chaos whether civilization development based on two positive feedbacks between science technology and the market might lead inevitably to a self destruction of human civilization etc Technology, Market Structure, and Internationalization

Nagesh Kumar,N. S. Siddharthan,1997 This volume analyses the factors that contribute to the technological capability in developing countries and examines the implication these have on policy formation Representing High Tech Companies
Gary M. Lawrence,Carl Baranowski,1999 This book discusses financing and documenting joint ventures and early stage strategic partnerships devising workable nondisclosure agreements and managing an intellectual property portfolio

Markets for Technology Ashish Arora,Andrea Fosfuri,Alfonso Gambardella,2004-01-30 The past two decades have seen a gradual but noticeable change in the economic organization of innovative activity Most firms used to integrate research and development with activities such as production marketing and distribution Today firms are forming joint ventures research and development alliances licensing deals and a variety of other outsourcing arrangements with universities technology based start ups and other established firms In many industries a division of innovative labor is emerging with a substantial increase in the licensing of existing and prospective technologies In short technology and knowledge are becoming definable and tradable commodities Although researchers have made significant advances in understanding the determinants and consequences of innovation until recently they have paid little attention to how innovation functions as an economic process This book examines the nature and workings of markets for intermediate technological inputs It looks first at how industry structure the nature of knowledge and intellectual property rights facilitate the development of technology markets It then examines the impacts of these markets on firm boundaries the division of labor within the economy industry structure and economic growth Finally it examines the implications of this framework for public policy and corporate strategy Combining theoretical perspectives from economics and management with empirical analysis the book also draws on historical evidence and case studies to flesh out its research results Competition Law of the European Union Van Bael & Bellis,2021-03-01

This new Sixth Edition of a major work by the well known competition law team at Van Bael the extensive case law in the field of cartels including in relation to cartel facilitation and price signalling important Article 102 rulings concerning pricing and exclusivity including the Post Danmark and Intel judgments as well as standard essential patents the current block exemption and guidelines applicable to vertical agreements including those applicable to the motor vehicle sector developments concerning online distribution including the Pierre Fabre and Coty rulings the current guidelines and block exemptions in the field of horizontal cooperation including the treatment of information exchange the evolution of EU merger control including court defeats suffered by the Commission and the case law on procedural infringements the burgeoning case law related to pharmaceuticals including concerning reverse payment settlements the current technology transfer guidelines and block exemption procedural developments including in relation to the right to privacy access to file parental liability fining methodology inability to pay and hybrid settlements the implementation of the Damages Directive and the first interpretative rulings As a comprehensive up to date and above all practical analysis of the EU competition rules as developed by the Commission and EU Courts this authoritative new edition of a classic work stands alone Like its predecessors it will be of immeasurable value to both business persons and their legal advisers

The Oxford Handbook of Innovation Management Mark Dodgson, David M. Gann, Nelson Phillips, 2014 While innovation is widely recognised as being critical to organisational success and the well being of societies it requires careful management to ensure that innovation processes have the best possible impact This volume provides a wide range of perspectives on the nature of innovation management and its influences

Markets for Technology and Their Implications for Corporate Strategy Ashish Arora, Andrea Fosfuri, Alfonso Gambardella, 2014 Although market transactions for technologies ideas knowledge or information are limited by several well known imperfections there is increasing evidence that during the last two decades or so such market transactions have become more common than in the past These markets bring about new challenges to the firms This paper examines some implications of markets for technology for the firms corporate and technology strategies Markets for technology change the traditional mindset in which the only available option for a company wishing to introduce an innovation is to develop the technology in house or for a company developing the technology to own the downstream assets needed to manufacture and commercialize the goods This affects the role of companies both as technology users they can now buy technologies and as technology suppliers they can now sell technologies The implications for management include more proactive management of intellectual property greater attention to external monitoring of technologies and organizational changes to support technology licensing joint ventures and acquisition of external technology For entrepreneurial startups markets for technology make a focused business model more attractive At the industry level markets for technology may lower barriers to entry and increase competition with obvious implications for the firms broader strategy as well
