Appropriate Technology United States. Congress. House. Committee on Science and Technology. Subcommittee on Domestic and International Scientific Planning, Analysis, and Cooperation, 1978 Poverty in Developing Countries World Employment Programme, 1992 Topics include agricultural development basic needs development strategy and planning economic development and policy employment food production housing needs income distribution and industrialization Indexes are divided by references authors corporate authors subject and geographical aspects Technology Options and Economic Policy for Dryland Agriculture, 1989 The Good Life in a Technological Age Philip Brey, Adam Briggie, Edward Spence, 2012-05-04 Modern technology has changed the way we live work play communicate fight love and die Yet few works have systematically explored these changes in light of their implications for individual and social welfare How can we conceptualize and evaluate the influence of technology on human well being Bringing together scholars from a cross section of disciplines this volume combines an empirical investigation of technology and its social psychological and political effects and a philosophical analysis and evaluation of the implications of such effects Gender, Information Technology, and Developing Countries Nancy J. Hafkin, Nancy Taggart, 2001 New Worlds, New Technologies, New Issues Stephen H. Cutcliffe, 1992 In this volume fifteen scholars from the United States Spain Puerto Rico and Colombia discuss the social implications of new technologies Their essays address the cultural worlds that crystallize around technologies the challenges to democracy that they pose and the responsibility of modern technology for forcing a public response to new social and moral issues Three themes define the three sections into which the volume is divided New Worlds New Technologies and New Issues The essays in the section New Worlds range from optimism that new technologies will produce a better world than that of 1992 through a nonjudgmental discussion of the transformation of our lifeworld that new technologies are effecting to deep concern for the viability of the world that modern technology has already created In New Technologies the focus is on political responses to modern technologies The authors in this section see the challenge to understanding and controlling our technological world in reshaping existing relations of social power and authority and in creating new institutions more adequate to the sociopolitical realities of the process of technological innovation While the contributors in the first two sections of the volume argue that broad changes in values and institutions are preconditions of a more beneficent relationship among people nature and technology those in the section New Issues adopt narrower more specific viewpoints Their essays address the political values underlying the Deep Ecology movement the ethics of military technologies the capacity of democratic institutions for a public role in setting technology policies and science and technology literacy mechanisms Collectively these essays reflect the growing international concern with the role played by technological innovation in a rapidly changing world and they point toward the formulation of concrete political platforms for informed social responses to the innovation process

Low-tech Magazine 2012-2018 Kris De Decker,2019-03-18 Low tech Magazine underscores the potential of past and often forgotten technologies and how they can inform sustainable energy practices Sometimes past technologies can be copied without any changes More often interesting possibilities arise when older technology is combined with new knowledge and new materials or when past concepts and traditional knowledge are applied to modern technology Inspiration is also to be found in the so called developing world where resource constraints often lead to inventive low tech solutions

The Evolution of Household Technology and Consumer Behavior, 1800-2000 Julia Sophie Woersdorfer,2017-03-27 The increasing division and specialization of labor between the market and the nonmarket sector is a central stylized fact of long run economic development Over time a large share of activities which had formerly been carried out by the private household itself has become replaced by market alternatives raising at the same time the demand for consumer goods The neoclassical economic framework of household production theory relates the increasing demand for household technology to rising wages and opportunity costs of time the higher the wage rate the more costly it is to spend time in unpaid housework activities Consumer products are thus purchased to make household production processes more efficient and to substitute capital goods for the household s time time substitution hypothesis Although this hypothesis sounds plausible at first sight it cannot capture the essential phenomena underlying the complex process of the mechanization of the home over the past 200 years Its major weakness lies in the treatment of consumer preferences whose explanatory potential is explicitly factored out Using the washing of clothes as a microcosm of household economics this book examines long term changes in cleanliness consumption patterns from the perspective of an evolutionary economic psychologically informed consumer theory Woersdorfer shows how the historical evolution of cleanliness consumption over the past 200 years is the result of the interplay of supply and demand side factors namely technical change in washing technology on one side and motivational driving forces and consumer learning capabilities on the other Hence not changing relative prices but innate consumer needs and consumer learning processes leading to a growing understanding of how to satisfy those needs are the essential driving forces behind the rising technological endowment of the home and the corresponding demand for household appliances The Evolution of Household Technology and Consumer Behavior 1800 2000 will be of interest to researchers in the field of evolutionary economics history of technology economic history innovation economics and sociology
