China's Economy Into the New Century John Wong, Ding Lu, 2002 In the last two decades of the 20th century China stood out as the world's star performer in economic growth thanks to the market oriented reform that started in 1978 At the turn of the century the Chinese economy faces a series of challenges to sustain its growth and stability The two decade long rapid growth has effectively strengthened China's economic power and raised its people's standard of living It has also transformed China from a centrally planned command economy into a socialist market economy which operates increasingly in line with capitalist norms Major structural problems however remain and are growing acute Weakness in the fiscal system breeds rent seeking at the local level and causes tension in the state budget The flawed financial institutions and the biased ownership structure continue to distort resource allocation and cause huge efficiency losses Inter provincial and inter regional disparity is reaching a level that threatens national unity and social stability As China joins the World Trade Organization and becomes more integrated into the world economy it urgently needs to improve the domestic business environment and to beef up indigenous industries for foreign competition This volume is a collection of papers written by scholars at the East Asian Institute to address those problems during the period 1999-2001 The authors with their knowledge and experience in China studies provide in depth observations and professional analyses of some of the most important issues for the Chinese economy at the turn of the century Some of the observations and analyses lead to enlightening policy recommendations The solid scholarship combined with the policy orientation of these papers will appeal greatly to researchers in academia governments and other institutions The policy oriented and fact based analyses will also be of China's Influence on Non-Trade Concerns in International Economic Law Paolo Farah, Elena Cima, 2016-10-14 This volume examines the range of Non Trade Concerns (NTCs) that may conflict with international economic rules and proposes ways to protect them within international law and international economic law. Globalization without local concerns can endanger relevant issues such as good governance, human rights, right to water, right to food, social, economic, cultural, and environmental rights, labor rights, access to knowledge, public health, social welfare, consumer interests, and animal welfare, climate change, energy, environmental protection, and sustainable development, product safety, food safety, and security. Focusing on China, the book shows the current trends of Chinese law and policy towards international standards. The authors argue that China can play a leading role in this context; not only has China adopted several reforms and new regulations to address NTCs, but it has started to play a very relevant role in international negotiations on NTCs such as climate change, energy, and culture, among others. While China is still considered a developing country, in particular from the NTCs point of view, it promises to be a key actor in international law in general and more specifically in international economic law in this respect. This volume assesses, taking into consideration its special context, China's behavior internally and externally to understand its role and influence in shaping NTCs in the context of international economic law.
