ABSTRACT

Each of the nine articles in this monograph demonstrates the use of a particular telecommunications technology, or a mixture of technologies and media at particular community colleges. Following an introduction by James Zigerell, the monograph presents (1) "Teleconferencing: The Homebound Project at Rio Salado College," by Helen Sprawls, which shows how a telephone in the home or hospital room can offer a direct line between instructor and student; (2) "Audiocassette: A Literature Course from the Bay Area Community College Television Consortium," by George A. Willey, which offers an example of the instructional potential of audio for both direct and supplemental instruction; (3) "Videocassette: Telecourses from the Northern Illinois Learning Resources Cooperative," by Ralph G. Steiaks, which explains how a community college consortium offers courses on videocassette in campus learning centers and public libraries; (4) "Videodisc: A Report on Science Laboratory Simulations," by Peter J. Dirr and Victoria Murphey, which discusses a project using videodiscs to simulate science laboratory experiences; (5) "Slide/Tape Modules: Developing Learning Materials in the North Carolina Rural Renaissance Consortium," by Norman Petty, which reports on how a newspaper article was utilized to develop adult learning modules for distance learners; (6) "Educational Access Cable: The Telecommunications System at Kirkwood Community College," by Richard Gross, which describes a model system that combines relatively inexpensive technologies to serve both an urban district and a rural area; (7) "Television: A Computer Course by TVOntario Academy," by David Walker, which shows how broadcasters and educators can work together in extending education and training; (8) "Satellite: The Learning System in British Columbia," by Kathleen Forsythe and Valerie Collins, which demonstrates how a satellite learning system can overcome adult learners' lack of time and problems of distance without sacrificing instructional quality; and (9) "Multimedia: The College of the Air at Mercer County Community college," by George Schwartz, which describes a program employing both broadcast and non-broadcast media to bring educational opportunities to area residents. technology and learning that are influencing community colleges Chapter 1 presenting results from a 3 year 700 college study concludes that colleges will become more learning centered find it difficult to maintain services and open access as student demands increase and resources shrink form more partnerships offer more remedial education and be subject to more accountability mandates In chapter 2 lessons from Maricopa County Community College Arizona indicate that educators must critique envision and create rather than just buy technology to meet the needs of the learner Chapters 3 4 and 5 examine administrative faculty and student services strategies that make use of emerging technologies Chapters 6 describes user support models based on survey responses from 114 colleges Chapter 7 details attributes of successful computer based instructional programs that serve basic skills students Chapter 8 traces the development of distance learning and its emerging role in instructional programs Chapter 9 explores changes in culture policies practices and other essential college characteristics that accompany changes in technology Chapter 10 describes technology driven marketing strategies that help recruit students secure funding and enhance the institution s image Chapter 11 explores the impact of the Internet on higher education Contains 52 figures 221 references and 6 survey forms PGS

The Role of the Community College in Teacher Education Barbara K. Townsend, Jan Marie Ignash, Jan M. Ignash, 2003-04-22 A community college role in teacher education is not new But there is a new or more accurately renewed interest in this role A national conversation about how community colleges can help us alleviate the teacher shortage has truly begun with many believe that an expanded community college role is critical to meet the nation s need for well prepared teachers This volume illustrates the extent to which community colleges have become major players in teacher education not only in the traditional way of providing the first two years of an undergraduate degree in teacher education but in such more controversial ways as offering associate and baccalaureate degrees in teacher education and providing alternative certification programs This is the 121st issue of the Jossey Bass higher education series New Directions for Community Colleges

Building a Working Policy for Distance Education Connie L. Dillon, 1997-11-30 Distance education offers the potential to further the mission of the community college in significant ways However the practice of education will not change without corresponding changes in our fundamental views of teaching and learning as these are reflected in the total of our state federal and institutional policies In many ways the community college offers other sectors of higher education a vision for the future This issue of New Directions for Community Colleges presents some of the policy issues confronting higher education in the age of distance learning and discusses the implications of these issues for the community college This is the 99th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Community Colleges For more information on the series please see the Journals and Periodicals section
