Striving Toward Wholeness:

Striving Towards Wholeness Barbara Hannah, 1971 The Generation of Edward Hyde Jay Bland, 2010 Robert Louis Stevenson's Strange Case of Dr Jekyll and Mr Hyde first appeared in 1886 Readers at the time commented on three major influences at work on the text Darwinism the Bible and Platonism With the passage of time commentators have tended to focus on either the Darwinian or the biblical implications surrounding Hyde and the Platonic implications have been more or less overlooked For a full understanding of Hyde all three must be considered and they must all be considered together This book locates Robert Louis Stevenson's Edward Hyde within the history of ideas It examines a range of texts from earlier literature involving apes or ape like creatures thereby revealing a tradition which explores and questions the origins of mankind theological philosophical and scientific in an attempt to account for the presence of our lower impulses The chosen texts show that as knowledge of the natural world increases through exploration and scientific learning earlier ways of looking at the world have accommodated new ideas by absorbing the new and incorporating it into the old mythological framework The author demonstrates how this tradition feeds naturally into Stevenson's text providing a Darwinian biblical Platonic context within which to examine Hyde Scribbling Women & the Short Story Form Ellen Burton Harrington, 2008 America is now wholly given over to a d d mob of scribbling women and I should have no chance of success while the public taste is occupied with their trash Taking Hawthorne's famous 1855 complaint about women writers as a starting point for consideration Scribbling Women and the Short Story Form is a collection of fourteen critical essays about the short fiction of British and American women writers This anthology takes a feminist approach examining the liberating possibilities for women writers of the form of the short story a genre often associated with alienation or subversion the writer Frank O'Connor describes the form as marginal or outlaw Covering the work of selected women writers from the 1850s through the late twentieth century this collection includes essays on well known authors such as Rebecca Harding Davis Louisa May Alcott Kate Chopin Katherine Anne Porter Flannery O'Connor Cynthia Ozick and Ursula K Le Guin alongside essays on Harriett Prescott Spofford Ruth Stewart L T Meade Alice Dunbar Nelson Zitkala Sa Sui Sin Far and Lydia Davis less known authors whose stories offer rich ground for consideration Free to be Responsible Ben Thomson Cowles, 1990 By choosing from the countless options open to us in the social and physical environments in the psychological and spiritual forces working around and in us we exercise our responsibility as individuals To be whole and healthy persons within society we need to put our heart and soul into expressing this unique opportunity to respond in appropriate and creative ways We exercise such responsibility armed yet made vulnerable by the contradictory characteristics and impulses within us creative yet confined by limiting circumstances reaching for yet withdrawing from the spiritual richness available to us aware of our abilities yet conflicted in what we want and what we will do Book jacket Gurdjieff Was Wrong But His Teaching Works Orest Stocco, 2016-02-07 Gurdjieff was wrong but his teaching works is the story of one man's remarkable journey of self discovery which dispels the Gurdjieffian premise that man is not born with an immortal soul With his own quest Orest Stocco illustrates that we are all born with a spark of divine consciousness but not until we take evolution into our own hands which Gurdjieff's teaching helped him to do will we realize our true self

Insane Euphoria Speaks Katherine Dickson, 2007-04

Insane Euphoria Speaks Diary of a Late Pregnancy is one woman's account of her third pregnancy from May 1971 through March 1972 When she first suspects that she is pregnant she wonders what her husband's reaction might be Should she or should she not have a third child In her deepest self she feels that she would like the profound natural happiness of being pregnant once again At the same time she wonders if she and her husband have both the emotional and financial resources to provide for a third child The narrator tries to balance the anticipated euphoria of the experience against the very substantial demands of a third child This will be the last pregnancy because she will be thirty nine years old in two months The positive side is that she is emotionally and psychologically ready for the experience and expects that she can make it into something more wonderful than her first two pregnancies had been She served her motherhood apprenticeship with her first two children and the third time around she can appreciate her hard won expertise She realizes that she will be able to enjoy a mastery of the motherhood experience akin to the professional mastery she enjoyed before motherhood An added plus to the third pregnancy is that she will be able to keep a journal something she wanted to do with her first two pregnancies but was never sufficiently in control to do so Her decision to continue the pregnancy is supported by her husband's enormous happiness at the prospect of a third child The narrator records both the resources and the limitations of her current situation She wants the pregnancy to be a beautiful experience and contain all that her previous two pregnancies lacked She feels she knows what to expect from the experience and this makes a significant difference She likes the house where she lives and is grateful for the view of the hill and field across the street from her living room window This is her relaxing view her contact with nature and the eternal The limitations of her situation are the lack of any household or babysitting help and the resulting acute need for some private time to herself Having been an independent professional woman before she had children she finds being a full time at home mother and an economic dependent a limiting and sometimes demeaning experience There are fluctuations in her relationship with her husband and negotiations about power and money in their everyday life The relationship is tugged one way by his wanting her to go back to work and the other way by her wanting him to expand his professional practice The narrator tries to keep anything from marring the enjoyment of her third and final pregnancy She wants to experience all the pleasure possible She finds this a time of psychic integration where the discordant elements of her personality are integrated and present more and deeper meaning than she had previously known The baby moves for the first time she witnesses her two year old learn to talk and her three year old start nursery school His family her family and their friends form a chorus in the background She experiences increasing dreaminess while she enjoys keeping a journal and at one point rereading some of her earlier journals In the end it culminates in the birth of a beautiful healthy baby girl The Art of Jungian Couples Therapy Elizabeth Éowyn Nelson, Anthony Delmedico, 2025-07-16 Within this accessible volume Nelson and Delmedico apply a Jungian approach to provide fresh ways of thinking about couples therapy and the profound unconscious forces at play when couples create a life together The Art of Jungian Couples Therapy offers new perspectives into thinking about what is happening in the consulting room which the authors re imagine as a sacred space or temenos guiding partners toward psychological wholeness or what Jung termed the Self The book offers welcome insights into how therapists can work with the complex and often intense energies that arise when two people cross the threshold of the clinical space As art in the title suggests it draws the therapist's attention to the souls of the partners and the soul of the relationship itself Firmly grounded in Jungian thought yet intimate approachable and up to date the book will be an indispensable guide for professional marriage and family therapists psychoanalysts from both Jungian and Freudian schools counseling psychologists and licensed social workers who already practice couples therapy or have considered working with couples An Imperialist Love Story Amira Jarmakani, 2015-07-31 A curious figure stalks the pages of a distinct subset of mass market romance novels aptly called desert romances Animalistic yet sensitive dark and attractive the desert prince or sheikh emanates manliness and raw sexual power In the years since September 11 2001 the sheikh character has steadily risen in popularity in romance novels even while depictions of Arab masculinity as backward and violent in nature have dominated the cultural landscape An Imperialist Love Story contributes to the broader conversation about the legacy of orientalist representations of Arabs in Western popular culture Combining close readings of novels discursive analysis of blogs and forums and interviews with authors Jarmakani explores popular investments in the war on terror by examining the collisions between fantasy and reality in desert romances Focusing on issues of security freedom and liberal multiculturalism she foregrounds the role that desire plays in contemporary formations of U S imperialism Drawing on transnational feminist theory and cultural studies An Imperialist Love Story offers a radical reinterpretation of the war on terror demonstrating romance to be a powerful framework for understanding how it works and how it perseveres Chimes of Change and Hours Audrey Borenstein, 1983 Encompassing a variety of perspectives on the lives of older women in modern America this book is a rich mosaic drawing on demographic social psychological social historical economic and gerontological data and incorporating transcripts of oral histories interviews with women artists fiction and essays by and about women in the second half of their lives autobiographies diaries journals letters and other sources Philosophical Children in Literary Situations Peter Costello, 2020-10-28 Philosophical Children in Literary Situations Toward a Phenomenology of Education argues that both phenomenology and children's literature can assist one another in understanding the lived experience of children Through careful readings of central figures in the phenomenological tradition including Husserl Heidegger and Merleau Ponty Costello introduces both the novice and the scholar to the phenomenological method of describing community emotion religion gender and loss experiences that are central to all humans but especially to the developing child When turning to literary analysis Costello uses the phenomenological theory discussed to open up the literary texts of familiar and award winning children s chapter books toward new layers of interpretation reading such novels as To Kill a Mockingbird A Wrinkle in Time and Charlotte s Web to participate in ongoing conversations about childhood perception within children s literature studies and philosophy for children Scholars of philosophy education literary studies and psychology will find this book particularly useful
