McNamer,2011-07-07 Affective meditation on the Passion was one of the most popular literary genres of the high and later Middle Ages Proliferating in a rich variety of forms these lyrical impassioned script like texts in Latin and the vernacular had a deceptively simple goal to teach their readers how to feel They were thus instrumental in shaping and sustaining the wide scale shift in medieval Christian sensibility from fear of God to compassion for the suffering Christ Affective Meditation and the Invention of Medieval Compassion advances a new narrative for this broad cultural change and the meditative writings that both generated and reflected it Sarah McNamer locates women as agents in the creation of the earliest and most influential texts in the genre from John of F camp s Libellus to the Meditationes Vitae Christi thus challenging current paradigms that cast the compassionate affective mode as Anselmian or Franciscan in origin The early development of the genre in women s practices had a powerful and lasting legacy With special attention to Middle English texts including Nicholas Love s Mirror and a wide range of Passion lyrics and laments Affective Meditation and the Invention of Medieval Compassion illuminates how these scripts for the performance of prayer served to construct compassion itself as an intimate and feminine emotion To feel compassion for Christ in the private drama of the heart that these texts stage was to feel like a woman This was an assumption about emotion that proved historically consequential McNamer demonstrates as she traces some of its legal ethical and social functions in late medieval England 100 Masters of Mystery and Detective Fiction
