The Making of the Industrial Landscape Barrie Stuart Trinder, 1982 Biography of an Industrial Landscape Svava Riesto, 2025-10-01 Biography of an Industrial Landscape tells the story of one of the most significant urban redevelopment projects in northern Europe at the turn of the century Examining the reinvention of the Carlsberg brewery site in Copenhagen as a city district Svava Riesto unpacks the deeper assumptions about value that lie behind contemporary design spatial planning and heritage practices In particular Riesto examines ways of valuing a vital yet seldom explicitly discussed feature of industrial landscapes open space Carlsberg s industrial open spaces were largely disregarded during the redevelopment which was founded on canonical heritage thinking and ideas about urban space that were poorly equipped to include the characteristics of these spaces in the design s considerations As a response this account reappraises industrial open spaces Drawing on Henri Lefebvre and biographical approaches to landscape research the Carlsberg site s open spaces are presented anew as an interplay of materials practices and the imagination shaped and reshaped by water yeast industrial working routines and conflicting ideas about the future city The Making of the American Landscape Michael P. Jameson,2004 Collection of original articles that examines issues in reconstructing archaeological sites fo the public both physically and virtually Visit our website for sample chapters The Early History of Railway Tunnels Hubert Pragnell,2024-08-30 To the early railway traveller the prospect of travelling to places in hours rather than days hitherto was an inviting prospect however a journey was not without its fears as well as excitement To some the prospect of travelling through a tunnel without carriage lighting with smoke permeating the compartment and the confined noise was a horror of the new age What might happen if we broke down or crashed into another train in the darkness To others it was exciting with the light from the footplate flickering against the tunnel walls or spotting the occasional glimpses of light from a ventilation shaft To the directors of early railway companies planning a route was governed by expense and the most direct way Avoiding hills could add miles but tunnelling through them could involve vast expense as the Great Western Railway found at Box and the London and Birmingham at Kilsby Creating a cutting as an alternative was also costly not only in labour and time but also in compensation for landowners who opposed railways on visual and social grounds having seen their land divided by canals Construction involved millions of bricks or blocks of stone for sufficiently thick walls to withstand collapse However the entrance barely seen from the carriage window might be an impressive Italianate arch as at Primrose Hill or a castellated portal worthy of the Middle Ages as at Bramhope This book sets out to tell the story of tunnelling in Britain up to about 1870 when it was a question of burrowing through earth and rock with spade and explosive powder with the constant danger of collapse or flooding leading to injury and death It uses contemporary accounts from the dangers of railway travel by Dickens to the excitement of being drawn through the Liverpool Wapping Tunnel by the young composer Mendelssohn It includes descriptions from early railway company guide books newspapers and diaries It also includes numerous photographs and colored architectural elevations from railway archives The Industrial Heritage Judith Alfrey,Tim Putnam,2003-09-02 The Industrial Heritage is the first integrated approach to the assessment conservation interpretation financing and management of the complex heritage of industrial cultures It breaks new ground as the authors both active workers in the field suggest that concepts of heritage defined to deal with pre industrial cultures must be modified to deal with the very different demands presented by industrial objects and the societies which produced them The essence of this book is practicality offering examples of the real issues which confront those concerned with preserving and managing the industrial heritage since the eighteenth century document the human experience of the British industrial canal This book traces networks of literary canal texts across four centuries to understand our relationships with water with place and with the past In our era of climate crisis this reading calls for a rethinking of the waterways of literature not simply as an antique transport system but as a coal fired energy system with implications for the present This book demonstrates how waterways literature has always been profoundly interested in the things we dig out of the ground and the uses to which they are put The industrial canal never just connected parts of Britain via its literature we read the ways in which we are in touch with previous centuries and epochs how canals linked inland Britain to Empire how they connected forms of labour and people to water

Locating the Industrial Revolution Eric L. Jones, 2010 The familiar industrialisation of northern England and less familiar de industrialisation of the south are shown to have depended on a common process Neither rise nor decline resulted from differences in natural resource endowments since they began before the use of coal and steam in manufacturing Instead political certainty competitive ideology and Enlightenment optimism encouraged investment in transport and communications This integrated the national market intensifying competition between regions and altering economic distributions Despite a dysfunctional landed system agricultural innovation meant that the south s comparative advantage shifted towards the farm sector Meanwhile its manufactures slowly declined Once industry clustered in the less benign northern environment technological changes in manufacturing accumulated there This book portrays the Industrial Revolution as deriving from economic competition within unique political arrangements Large-Scale Urban Parks on Post-Industrial Sites in Contemporary Urban Landscape Conceptions Mengyixin Li, 2023-08-09 The theme is related to Large Parks on Post industrial Sites in Contemporary Urban Landscape Conceptions which is expounded in the fields of landscape architecture landscape ecology and urban planning A worldwide perspective is created so as to conduct cross cultural research on the theories and practices of large scale urban parks in North America Germany and China Through the scientific approach of critical rationalism three design paradigms of large parks in different conceptions of contemporary urban landscapes are formulated based on quantitative and qualitative analysis which are classified as the organic parks of North American landscape urbanism the structural parks of German landscape structuralism and the large parks of Chinese urban inventory renewal By means of critical thinking in diverse cultural interpretations the research aims to reveal remarkable similarities and differences between the cultures in the Western world according to their understanding of landscapes coherent vs creative landscape and ecology representation vs metaphor and landscape and life diversity vs unpredictability Through theoretical analysis and case studies it demonstrates that the international park paradigms characterised by complexity diversity sustainability appropriation and identity can influence various socio cultural ecological and aesthetic developments Finally the analytical results of the two park paradigms in Western countries are adopted in the examination of landscape architectural park models and urbanistic theoretical frameworks in China This monograph is written primarily for scholars professionals and students in the fields of landscape architecture urban planning and architecture The book involving in depth analysis about urban parks green open spaces green infrastructure and post industrial landscapes will have international appeal It will appeal to readers at different levels Above all it may be of interest to professionals who are concerned with the topics urban parks and post industrial landscapes as well as Chinese scholars and experts particularly those looking at China s urban renewal and the ongoing transformation of post industrial sites at different scales This book will have strong implications for relevant urban landscape practices in China Furthermore it will be supported by the author s colleagues from various countries such as Germany Italy USA Canada Brazil and China Moreover students to whom the author teaches courses of Landscape Architecture History and Theory and Landscape Planning and Design at BUCEA as well as the international students at Collaborative Classes organized by BUCEA TUM and POLIMI Politecnico di Milano Italy are encouraged to read this book
