

Plant Magic!

Plant Propagating Activity

What is 'Propagation'?

Propagation is the process of creating new plants out of existing plants, just like magic! You can take part of an existing plant, like its stem or leaves for example and use them to grow an entirely new plant!

How to Propagate

Different plant varieties may be propagated in different ways, most commonly propagation is done by cutting away part of the stem and placing it in water until it grows its own roots and can be planted in soil.

Other ways to propagate are by splitting plants at the roots, or waiting until they grow 'pups'. Pups are smaller offshoots that some plants make naturally, that can be separated and grown into their own plants!

Some of the easiest plants to propagate are:
Pothos
Tradescantia
Umbrella Plant
African Violets
Philodendron
Kalanchoe

1. Think about what you want to take a part of the plant to take. A stem, leaves and roots depending on what it is. Try to cut long so you have the best chance of growing a new plant!
2. Now you've chosen the part of your plant you want to propagate, choose a container of water to place it in and make sure it's clean!
3. Now place your cutting in water and leave it in the water for 2-3 weeks until it grows its own roots!
4. Once you're happy the roots are a couple of inches long, take out of the water and put in a pot with soil!
5. The potting mix you used for the first plant should work for your new plant!
